

Court voids $211-million phone rate hikes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court wiped out $211.9 million in rate increases for Pacific Telephone Co. Friday, setting the stage for refunds to customers in most parts of the state.

The court ruled that the increased rates, granted by the state Public Utilities Commission, were struck down because they were based on an accelerated depreciation tax accounting method which the Supreme Court disapproved in a 1971 decision.

The court ordered the company's rates rolled back to 1968 levels under the commission's last lawful standard.

The impact of the court's unanimous decision will require Pacific Telephone to refund about $120 million collected since the PUC approved a $143-million rate increase in June 1971. The rate boosts, amounting to $1 a month to metropolitan-area residential phone subscribers in most of California, have been in effect since July 23, 1971.

Areas serviced by Pacific Telephone Co. include San Pedro, Harbor City, Compton, part of Wilmington, part of Torrance and most of metropolitan Los Angeles, as well as much of Orange County.

The court also invalidated a $68.9-million increase effective last May 27 to offset wage increases and other operating costs. This resulted in a 10-cent-a-month family-owned phone rate increase in addition to other boosts including a 15-cent-a-month charge for unlisted phones.

"This has to be the most disastrous action in the history of Pacific Telephone," said Gordon Hough, the company's executive vice president. "We certainly will file a petition for rehearing."

The court said the rollback of Pacific's rates to the last lawful 1968 order will become effective after its decision becomes final.

The decision will become final in 30 days if a rehearing is not granted by the high court that already has ruled unanimously twice against the company on the tax accounting issue.

Justice Raymond Peters said in the court's opinion the $143-million general rate increase was based on the commission's approval of a tax accounting method which the court rejected last November.

Bomb threat hits McGovern plane

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — A chartered United Airlines jet carrying U.S. Sen. George McGovern was evacuated on landing here Friday because of a bomb threat. Three persons were injured scurrying down an emergency exit chute.

The South Dakota senator, frontrunner for the Democratic presidential nomination, was not hurt, aides said.

No bomb was found during a search of the plane.

The bomb threat, which was telephoned to New York police, was received aboard the plane as it flew from New York to Oklahoma City, where McGovern was to appear at a fund-raising dinner.

A spokesman for United Air Lines said the jet, which was due to land at Greater Pittsburgh International Airport for a fuel stop, taxied to a secluded area on arrival and McGovern and the other 30 passengers scurried down an emergency exit chute.

Another United spokesman in Chicago said the emergency chute was used because a door would not open.

While the plane was searched, McGovern went to Sewickley Valley Hospital where NBC cameraman Stuart Ruby, 43, of Whitehouse, N.Y., was being treated for back injuries.

Eddy Jones, 43, of Englewood, N.J., and Anthony DeAngelo, 36, of Ocean-side, N.Y., also members of the NBC crew, were treated at the hospital and released, as was Allegheny County Police Sgt. Edward Papp of Pittsburgh who apparently was hurt helping passengers down the chute.

Kleindienst fumbles facts in wiretap defense

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst, vowing to keep using wiretaps to fight organized crime, said Friday the Nixon administration had "instituted 1,600 court-supervised surveillances." But a Justice Department spokesman said the new boss was wrong, that it was only 490.

Kleindienst, confirmed Thursday after lengthy Senate hearings, cited the figures in an off-the-cuff speech to the Philadelphia chapter of the Federal Bar Association.

He said the wiretaps, over the last 3½ years, had "led to over 700 indictments."

"Wrong," responded John Wilson, who said he gathers statistics for the Justice Department in Washington.

"We don't have any records of indictments. We do know, however, that the wiretaps, up to Jan. 1, have produced 2,140 arrests and 480 convictions."

Wilson said he consulted with Kleindienst on the department figures and was authorized to disclose the errors made in the public talk, the first by the attorney general since his confirmation.

Kleindienst told more than 200 lawyers and judges that wiretapping "is a legitimate, constitutional means to root out organized crime," and that he would continue to use it, possibly even expand it.

"This will be done while this President Richard Nixon is President and while I am attorney general," Kleindienst told the Philadelphia chapter of

Says lack of endorsement won't hurt McGovern unruffled by Muskie

By WILLIAM BROOM
National Bureau Chief

An obviously unruffled Sen. George McGovern Friday termed Sen. Edmund Muskie's decision not to support him "a compliment to the rank-and-file Democrats," but he contended that this would not harm his campaign for the presidential nomination.

"I think Sen Muskie's decision was the proper one and I can't argue with it," McGovern told newsmen while standing on the back of a car in New York's garment district.

McGovern said Muskie made no commitment to him when they met Thursday in Washington — amid speculation the fallen front-runner would throw his support to McGovern.

Although "I had hoped that he would endorse me," McGovern said, "I don't think this hurts us."

Sen. Humphrey rejects idea of Wallace as running mate, says he was misquoted. Story on Page A-3.

In different ways cautioned McGovern that he must modify his views on some major issues if he wants to retain broad Democratic Party support after winning the nomination.

McGovern has emerged from preferential primaries and state conventions with 60 per cent of the 1,509 delegates needed to win the nomination. But his proposals to give every American an extra $1,000 annual living allowance, to redistribute the wealth through taxation, and to almost halve the nation's defense budget have aroused fears that he might be regarded by the electorate as overly radical.

1968 convention to ensure free and open conventions.

Besides, he said pointedly, "Party unity is not achieved with the magic wand of the kingmaker. No man can hand George McGovern a united party."

Muskie's decision thus confronted McGovern with the arduous task of winning one by one the remaining delegates needed to nail down nomination. That process is already under way. McGovern is expected to win enough delegates in the New York primary and other remaining state conventions to go to the national convention with more than 1,200 delegates, leaving him 300 short of the total needed.

Muskie denied he is part of a "stop McGovern" movement.

"What troubled me was that what might have been a simple endorsement could become a decisive stroke that would lock up the convention," Muskie said. "It would have stopped not only me, but those delegates and others who are still asking questions about Sen. McGovern's positions on the issues."

"IT IS not within me to take that step which would bypass hard-won Democratic Party reforms and by doing so subvert them," he explained. "If reform means anything it means the nominee must be selected in an open convention."

The fear of a party-splitting convention results from the belief that McGovern's positions on many critical issues facing the country "are unacceptable to a very large portion of our people," said Muskie.

Campaigning in New York for that state's 278 delegates, McGovern appeared cheerful as he reacted to Muskie's decision.

"We have done well without Sen. Muskie's endorsement and I think we will continue to do well," the South Dakota Democrat said.

B52s hammer foe only 23 miles from Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — Huge B52 bombers made their closest raids to Saigon in almost three years late Friday and early today, bombing suspected Communist positions as close as 23 miles to the capital.

The bombers also made three strikes inside North Vietnam and four within the demilitarized zone, marking the third straight day the eight-engine planes have swept into the North. Fighter-bombers struck within 20 miles of the Chinese border.

IN THE GROUND war, South Vietnamese troops recaptured the coastal town of Dap Da from the Viet Cong and got relief forces through to An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, for the first time since soon after the current Communist offensive began on March 30.

In Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, 370 miles north of Saigon, four Americans were wounded in two separate rocket attacks. Two South Vietnamese, including one civilian, were killed and 18 civilians wounded in one of the two attacks.

Two other explosions in Da Nang also killed two South Vietnamese soldiers and wounded one civilian.

The Saigon command said 123 Communists and 13 South Vietnamese were killed in several clashes at An Loc, Kienien Thien 130 miles southwest of Saigon and at Dap Da.

THE U.S. Command said two American soldiers were killed and one wounded Friday in a skirmish with Communist troops 27 miles northeast of Saigon in Binh Dong province.

The Command also reported a U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom jet crashed 30 miles northwest of Hanoi while on a mission over North Vietnam Wednesday and both crewmen are listed as missing.

The Command said one B52 mission was flown 23 miles Northwest of Saigon in the area traditionally used by the Communists as an infiltration route from Cambodia as a forward base area. The raid was in Hau Nghia province 10 miles southwest of Cu Chi.

Two other B52 strikes against Communist troop concentrations and staging areas were flown 27 miles northwest of Saigon in Binh Dong province, five miles northwest of the provincial capital of Phu Cong, the spokesman said.

The heavy bombers also made seven raids around Kontum City, 260 miles north of Saigon.

Tunney switches, backs McGovern

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Ninety minutes after Sen. Edmund S. Muskie announced he remains a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., asked to be released from his pledge to support Muskie until released at the nomination convention.

Tunney announced he is switching to Sen. George S. McGovern, winner of the recent California primary, and that he will be a member of the 271-member California delegation to the Democratic convention next month. Tunney was Muskie's California campaign manager.

The Californian made a forceful argument to Muskie Wednesday night, urging him to quit the race and back McGovern.

When Muskie announced his decision to the contrary, Tunney placed a phone call to him at 3:30 p.m. and they held a lengthy conversation. At its end, Tunney issued the following brief announcement:

"I have personally discussed the matter with Sen. Muskie and he has agreed that I will become a member of the California delegation. I am convinced that George McGovern will win the first ballot. I am also convinced that George McGovern has the integrity, the ability and the deep human appeal to the American people to defeat Richard Nixon for the presidency in the November election."

Tunney left immediately on a weekend camping trip with his two sons and could not be reached for additional comment.

Earlier in the day McGovern, obviously unaware of what Muskie's decision would be, said he would welcome a McGovern-Muskie ticket. "I think it would make a superb ticket," he said.

Humphrey's supporters were heartened but realistic in reaction to the announcement. They were hoping that in the time

Elvis' jiggle tame by today's standards

Combined News Services

Elvis Presley said Friday his gyrating performances of 15 years ago, which shocked thousands of parents and got him censored below the pelvis on television, were "tame compared to what they're doing now. Man, all I did was jiggle," Presley, now 37, told one of his rare news conferences. Appearing with his father, Vernon, Presley was greeted by the usual feminine screams on the eve of his first performance in New York City. "I love you Elvis," shouted an attractive woman reporter in her mid-20s. "Thank you dear," replied Presley.

Asked about the screams which started more than 15 years and 30 gold records ago, Presley said, "I got used to them. I'd miss it now if it didn't happen. To me it's part of the business and I accept it." Wearing a baby blue coat with a long, flowing dark blue cape, Presley was asked the reason behind the long length of his career. "I take vitamin E," he said. But he added, "I don't know. I enjoy the business. 'I'd like to think I've improved over the last 15 years,' he said. "But I don't want to take away from my early hits. I'm not the least bit ashamed of 'Hound Dog' and 'Heartbreak Hotel.'" Presley, whose weekend appearances at Madison Square Garden reportedly sold out in record time, also was asked his views on Vietnam and politics.

"Honey," he replied to the female reporter asking the questions, "I'd just as soon keep my personal opinions to myself. I'm just an entertainer."

Where's Frank?

The whereabouts of singer Frank Sinatra remained a mystery Friday to the congressional committee which wants the famous entertainer to testify about his association with a Massachusetts race track. Chairman Claude Pepper of the House Crime Committee said he has signed a subpoena directing Sinatra to testify July 18 and "it's been delivered to the U.S. marshalls for service." Sinatra was last seen in London Thursday, the same day he was scheduled to appear before the committee which is probing the extent of criminal influence on professional sports and horse racing.

Pro-Agnew

Mrs. Julie Eisenhower, younger daughter of President Nixon, said Friday she believed Vice President Agnew would be her father's running mate in the 1972 general election. "My hunch, if you'd like a hunch, is that he'd be on the ticket," said Mrs. Eisenhower. "I think Vice President Agnew has been a very good vice president. I would stick with Agnew, but it's not my decision," Julie said at the General Federation of Women's Clubs meeting in Denver.

Cox promoted

President Nixon's son-in-law, Edward Cox, said Friday he has been promoted to first lieutenant in the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps and will report for four months active duty in February. Cox, now residing at the White House with his wife, Tricia, gave the information in a sidewalk interview as he was coming home at lunchtime. Cox graduates next week from Harvard Law School.

Governess?

Sen. Barbara Jordan of Houston is to be sworn in this morning as governor of Texas for one day. She will be the first black woman ever to be governor of a state. Miss Jordan, 38, gets the chance to be governor because she is the assistant presiding officer of the state Senate and Gov. Preston Smith and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes will be out of the state.

Van Cliburn

Moscow music lovers treated American pianist Van Cliburn to "lengthy applause and showers of spring flowers" Friday night at the close of his farewell concert. Cliburn said "Thank you for everything" several times in Russian. He was completing an eight-concert tour in Leningrad and Moscow. Cliburn's final concert was in the Grand Hall of Moscow Conservatory, where he "embarked" on his brilliant career... 14 years ago," the news agency Tass said.

3-war veteran

Maj. Gen. Cornelius Ryan, a veteran of three wars and a former civilian director of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, has died at the age of 75. Ryan was assistant chief of staff of the 12th Army Group and landed on Omaha Beach July 23, 1944. He was on Gen. Omar Bradley's staff during World War II and won six battle stars. Services were conducted at Menlo Park Thursday night for Ryan, who died Tuesday in the Veterans Administration Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Wedding day

Television's David Brinkley and Susan Adolph of Washington will be married today in the sumptuous setting of Carter's Grove, an 18th century plantation near Williamsburg, Va. The wedding will take place in the entrance hall of the 200-foot-long manor house. It will be the second marriage for both. Mrs. Adolph's 4-year-old daughter and Brinkley's three sons, aged 17, 19 and 22, will attend the wedding. The couple met 10 months ago at a party.

Claim granted

A State Supreme Court judge on Friday granted the McGraw-Hill publishing company a $776,000 claim against author Clifford Irving and his wife Edith for payments the company made for the bogus autobiography of Howard Hughes. The company was not immediately available for comment on the judgment.

Woman rabbi

The first practicing woman Rabbi said Friday, "the time has come to allow women complete and full participation" in the Temple. Rabbi Sally Preisand said in a New York interview that despite a traditional male dominance in Judaism, "women are the ones who come to the services and to the study groups." A pretty, 25-year-old brunette, Miss Preisand was ordained last week by the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute in Cincinnati. She is believed to be the only female Rabbi in the world.

Capone grave

For the second time in recent years the grave stone that marks gangster Al Capone's burial place is missing. "This happened once before," said Herbert Mann, an administrative assistant at Mt. Carmel Cemetery in this west Chicago suburb. "We found the thing a little later in some bushes nearby." The stone is 2-feet long and a foot wide and weighs about 50 pounds. There are six Capones buried in a nondescript plot about 100 feet inside the cemetery gates. Al Capone, once king of organized crime in Chicago during prohibition, died in 1947.

Tensions, barricades mount

Combined News Services

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Hundreds of Protestants in paramilitary uniforms threw up a series of barricades around their Belfast strongholds early today, deepening tension that followed the deaths of five people in less than 24 hours of shooting and bombing. The barriers were built of trucks, buses and cars, many hijacked by roving mobs. They sealed off Protestant enclaves in north, central, east and southeast Belfast, security forces said.

S. African mine to be sealed

SALISBURY, Rhodesia — Efforts to rescue more than 400 men trapped in the Wankie coal mine were halted Friday night and the mine was ordered sealed, an official announced. Eight miners were rescued from the disaster area after a series of explosions Tuesday. One of them died later. "Devastation underground was complete and evidence is conclusive that there are no survivors," said Sir Keith Acutt, chairman of the Anglo-American Corp., owner of the mine. Acutt said the firm no longer was prepared to risk the men's lives on what he called a hopeless cause.

Japanese protest Kissinger

TOKYO — Henry Kissinger, in Japan on a twice-postponed visit, was showered today with anti-American leaflets. Some of the leaflets said: "Stop the U.S.-Asian strategy coming into Japan" and "Wash away the U.S. armed bases from Japan." Demonstrators apparently felt that Kissinger's trip to Japan constituted an advance toward Japanese militarism. The demonstration was carried out at the Hotel Okura, where the President's adviser met with Japanese business leaders. It was staged by an organization calling itself "The 70's Transition Stage Committee for Producing Japan Liberty Native Front."

U.N. hijacking aid considered

WASHINGTON — The U.S. is considering asking the United Nations to take action to deal with the hijacking of airliners, the State Department indicated Friday. In London, the International Federation of Airline Pilots Association threatened to ground most of the world's airlines for 24 hours June 19 unless the U.N. takes effective action. Chairman Secor Browne of the Civil Aeronautics Board proposed creation of a special force for airport security.

Price of gold begins to tumble

LONDON — The price of gold plummeted in European bullion markets Friday after four consecutive days of record-setting advances that had driven it to an all-time high of $87 per ounce. Market analysts attributed the selloff to profit taking. In London, trading opened Friday at $86.37 per ounce but rapidly declined to close at $82.75. In Paris gold closed Friday at $88.61 per ounce, off $3.58 from the previous day's close, while in Frankfurt, the price fell by $1.93 and closed at $82.98. In Zurich, the gold price closed at $82.75 an ounce, sharply down from Thursday's level.

U.S., China clash over Vietnam

STOCKHOLM — The United Nations conference on the environment ran into a major roadblock Friday when Chinese delegates demanded that it deal with the war in Indochina in its declaration on the environment. The Chinese also said they could not accept curbs on nuclear testing in the proposed declaration, the key document considered by the conference.

Tito still the 'revisionist'

MOSCOW — President Tito of Yugoslavia reaffirmed Friday his country's desire to improve its relations with the Soviet Union, but stressed that the process must be "without any interference." In an address to workers of a Moscow factory, Tito also emphasized that "socialism is a social system that has many ways and forms." The statement was reference to Tito's personal brand of communism, which caused Stalin to oust him from the Soviet camp as "revisionist" in 1948.

Fall action on antibusing sought

WASHINGTON — The White House said Friday President Nixon would like his antibusing legislation acted on by fall despite congressional approval of other antibusing measures. The $21.3-billion education bill approved by the House Thursday would prevent federal court busing orders from taking effect for 18 months unless all appeals have been exhausted.

No crisis as Nixon speeds home

THURMONT — President Nixon, leaving wife Pat behind, made a hurry-up trip back to the White House from nearby Camp David Friday night. A spokesman said there was "no crisis." Deputy press secretary Gerald Warren said he expected Nixon to be at work all day today in the White House. He could offer no explanation for the sudden helicopter flight, coming after informal word that Nixon likely would be here at least until Sunday night. However, Warren repeated several times that "no crisis" was involved.

Danger to eyesight LBSU laser machine gone

By LOU GODFREY
Staff Writer

A "potentially dangerous" portable laser machine is missing from the physics laboratory at Long Beach State University, police said Friday.

Campus security officers told city police that the $1,600 machine, described as Spectra physics helium-neon laser, was noticed missing during an inventory of lab equipment.

Dr. John Fredrickson, LBSU physics professor, said the laser, which projects a pinpoint beam of high-intensity light amplified by the helium-neon gases, poses a potential danger to eyesight if the light strikes the eyes.

Fredrickson said the laser operates on the same principle, but is much weaker than lasers used in delicate eye operations where the beam is used to weld a detached retina to the back of an eyeball.

He said the very narrow, concentrated beam of light cannot be seen from the side and it does not spread very much over great distances.

"I wouldn't want to look at it even from 500 feet," the professor said.

He added that the beam projected from the missing laser would not burn the skin and its primary danger is to eyesight.

Frederickson said he thought the small machine had been missing for about four to six weeks.

It was kept in a black case measuring about 14 inches long and three to four inches around.

He said the only use anyone could have for it — other than as a toy — would be to sell it to a laboratory or school.

Many laboratories would like to have one, he said, but it is unlikely that anyone would buy a laser from an individual.

Mysterious syndrome

How can I get in touch with a group in this area concerned with the Sudden Infant Death Syndrome? Mrs. J.H. Long Beach.

The only California chapter of the National Foundation for Sudden Infant Death Syndrome is at San Diego and by now you have received literature from its president, Mrs. Sally Saltzstein.

The foundation, with headquarters at 1501 Broadway, N.Y., is a non-profit group formed primarily to counsel parents who have lost children to SIDS and to educate the community about the mysterious disease, believed to be the leading killer of infants aged one month to one year. The group is attempting to establish chapters of concerned parents and medical personnel throughout the United States. Mrs. Saltzstein told ACTION LINE the San Diego group meets every two months for group therapy sessions and to make plans for community education programs. Anyone wishing information should write Mrs. Saltzstein at 11384 Larena Lane, El Cajon, Calif. 92020. SIDS, also known as "cot death strikes without warning, killing a seemingly healthy baby in its sleep. There are no known prior symptoms and autopsies show no cause of death. Babies from poor families seem to be affected most often.

Any plumber willing to volunteer to do the job — as a contribution to the Westside anti-poverty program — can phone Mrs. Susan Bakies at 995-1613. C.A., Long Beach.

Passport

Vacation time is very near. Can you tell me the status of the Golden Eagle Passports for this summer? E.M.D., Long Beach.

The status hasn't been determined yet, said Thomas Wilson, information officer for the National Park Service in Washington, D.C. Both houses of Congress have passed bills authorizing extension of the Golden Eagle Passport for 1972 but the bills differ. The two bills are now before a conference committee where differences will be worked out and a revised bill sent back to the House and Senate for approval. If the revised bill is approved it must be signed by President Nixon before it becomes law. Wilson couldn't predict how long this process may take. He said it could be days or weeks. A Golden Eagle Passport is a wallet-size card providing year-long access for the car holder and occupants of his vehicle to some federal recreation areas without further charge. Last year the passports sold for $10.

Disposal

How is sewage disposed of in this area? C.Z., Long Beach.

After being treated in disposal plants, about half of the area's sewage is pumped into the ocean through huge pipes extending several miles out from shore. The rest, mostly semi-purified water, is distributed to settling basins where it filters into the ground, being further cleansed as it goes, eventually to replenish the underground water supplies. Some is used directly for irrigation. A little of the processed solid matter is converted into fertilizer. Raw sewage wastes are broken down chiefly through the action of specially-cultured bacteria in the disposal plants.

I can't stand cigarette smoke. I get terrible headaches and when I smell smoke, they get worse. Recently I was a patient at St. Mary's Hospital and, when I asked to be placed with another patient who didn't smoke in the semi-private room my insurance would pay for, I was told I would have to take what I could get. I was put with a patient who didn't smoke but her visitors did. When I complained, I was told I would either have to go out of the room to avoid the smoke or get a private room — that they couldn't ask visitors not to smoke. Why can't hospital visitors have the decency to not smoke in patient's rooms. Mrs. K.M., Long Beach.

County urged to buy beach sites

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors Friday were urged to include about $1.5 million in the 1972-73 budget to buy two beach sites in the Abalone Cove and Portuguese Bend areas of Palos Verdes Peninsula.

The request for acquisition of the two-mile strip was backed by a delegation of one of the sites say-homeowner groups, civic and political leaders.

Only one person, Portuguese Bend resident Jack Christie spoke against purchase of the cliffside portion of ne of the sites saying it was slide-prone and "extremely hazardous."

HE SAID children could be kept away from the edge of the cliffs by fences. "But children cannot understand the nature of slipping ground," he said.

Christie said he was not opposing purchase of the Abalone Coves site saying it was the most logical place to put in a beach park facility.

Dorothy Le Conte, chairman of the Save Our Coastline group, pressed for purchase of the beach sites after telling the board "You now have an opportunity to punch a hole in the fence that has been keeping the coastline from the public."

A spokesman for Congressman Alphonzo Bell told the board it "must act and act quickly if we are to preserve the south coastal area of the Palos Verdes Peninsula in a natural state and for public recreation."

Pacheco will appeal sentence in slaying

Defense attorneys for Los Angeles policeman Manuel Pacheco said Friday they would appeal his sentence of one year in county jail for the slaying of his estranged wife.

Although a jury returned a verdict of involuntary manslaughter against Pacheco Feb. 29, Superior Court Judge Jack E. Goertzen sentenced him to the jail term Friday and placed him on six years probation.

A state prison sentence was suspended on condition of the lengthy probation.

The prison term for the 25-year-old police Medal of Valor winner was urged by the prosecutor, Deputy Dist. Atty. Marsh Goldstein, who said that despite the jury verdict he still felt the slaying was a murder and not manslaughter.

Pacheco shot and killed his wife, Anita, 24, at her home at 2739 E. 128th St., Dominguez, about a month after receiving a divorce decree.

Mrs. Pacheco's boyfriend, Alfred Thatcher, 27, was wounded in the attack.

Both Mrs. Pacheco's family and Thatcher have filed civil lawsuits against Pacheco.

Judge Goertzen, in passing sentence, noted that a 90-day psychiatric test at the California Institution for Men at Chino where Pacheco spent 72 days undergoing evaluation, was "one of the best" he had received from the Department of Corrections.

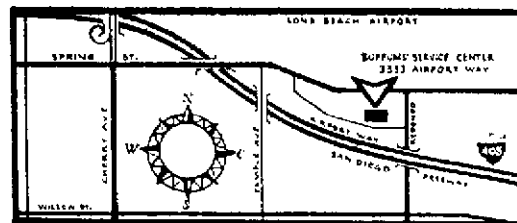

He said that in view of the report, he would recommend that Pacheco be placed on a work-furlough program. He has been offered a job with a former employer, a construction firm, where he worked after the killing.

HHH supporters would favor Nixon over McGovern

By JACK ROSENTHAL
 New York Times Service

A striking proportion of voters who supported Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in California say that if Sen. George McGovern wins the Democratic nomination, they will abandon their party and vote for President Nixon in November.

According to a cross-section survey conducted on election day here by the New York Times and Daniel Yankelovich, Inc., about 40 per cent of Humphrey voters say they would defect to the President in a Nixon-McGovern race.

Another 40 per cent say they would stand by McGovern as the Democratic nominee. The remainder are undecided or say they would not vote.

THE 40 PER CENT defection rate—equivalent to the loss of one out of every six California Democrats—is not only high, it is significantly higher than the rate measured in any of the four previous primary election surveys conducted by The Times and the Yankelovich research firm.

The California survey was of a scientific sampling of 570 voters in 11 counties who were interviewed as they left the polls. The total included an over-sampling of 56 black voters.

The Humphrey defection rate contrasted markedly with that among McGovern voters. If Humphrey should win the nomination, less than 20 per cent of the McGovern voters say they would defect to the President.

THE HIGH HUMPHREY defection rate mirrored a series of signs of relative conservatism among the Minnesota Senator's supporters. The survey indicated they are less concerned about the Vietnam war and more sympathetic to Alabama Governor George C. Wallace than are McGovern voters.

And, the survey indicated, Humphrey's comparatively conservative positions won him support as the California campaign drew to a close.

McGovern won gathering support from younger voters in the closing days of the campaign. His support among the first-time voters, aged 18-to-24 jumped to easily its highest level, of any of the five surveys.

THE CALIFORNIA survey showed he won about three-fourths of this large bloc. Translated into total votes, that would mean he won about 425,000 of an estimated 580,000 youth votes. His total margin of victory over Humphrey in California was about 175,000.

Meanwhile, however, Humphrey appeared to make off-setting gains among non-youth voters. His net gain of about 20 per cent in this category was twice that of McGovern.

These gains among more conservative and older voters appear to reflect Humphrey's sharp attacks on affirmative McGovern proposals as verging on reckless and radical.

FURTHER, the showing of late Humphrey gains parallels previous findings of the Times Yankelovich survey. These indicated that Humphrey cut into a potentially large McGovern victory margin with his attacks. These were made, notably, in three nationally televised debates prior to the election.

A week before the election, the statewide California poll reported a 20 point McGovern lead. In the final returns, McGovern won by a 46-to-40 per cent margin.

Another sign of the comparative conservatism of Humphrey voters was the finding that less than half think any Democrat can defeat President Nixon. By contrast, two-thirds of McGovern voters think so. Among all California Democratic voters, only a little over half are optimistic about November.

THE RISE FROM primary to primary in the number of Humphrey voters who would not support McGovern parallels the increasing attention paid to the South Dakota's affirmative proposals.

These include restructuring the defense budget and reducing it substantially to $55 billion, and replacing the present welfare system with a system of tax reliefs designed to help the poor.

In the Florida primary, 25 per cent of Humphrey voters said they would prefer Nixon to McGovern in November. In Wisconsin the figure was 29 per cent; in Pennsylvania, 34 per cent; and in Michigan, 22 per cent.

Among other findings of the California surveys were the following:

—McGovern strongly improved his showing among voting blocs formerly dominated by Humphrey—blacks, older adults, and blue-collar voters. But these McGovern gains were somewhat offset by Humphrey gains among younger adults and white collar workers.

—The two men appeared to divide the black and the Mexican-American vote equally.

—As elsewhere, McGovern virtually monopolized the anti-Vietnam war vote while Humphrey was the choice of most voters concerned about experience in government.

—On economic issues, which played an important role in McGovern's Wisconsin victory, the two men appeared to divide about evenly. For example, slightly more voters concerned about inflation favored McGovern. Slightly more concerned about high property taxes favored Humphrey.

Miami loves parties — Demos' and GOP

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — The Tourist Development Authority has voted to issue bumper stickers and banners bearing the slogans, "Miami Beach Loves Democrats," or "Miami Beach Loves Republicans," for the two political conventions this summer.

But even something as simple as slogans boosting the conventions didn't pass the TDA without some controversy.

It seems the bumper stickers and banners bear, in addition to the slogans, a picture of a donkey or an elephant, each with a bunch of flowers in its mouth.

Six TDA members like the idea, but member Herbert Robins said he didn't. "We shouldn't be appealing to flower children," Robins said, reminding members that some 100,000 young protesters are expected to arrive for the Democratic convention July 10-14 and the Republican convention Aug. 21-23.

"And also," he said, "I believe the word 'love' is fatuous. We should stick to Miami Beach Welcomes Democrats."

Robins was overruled, however, and the TDA voted 6-1 to adorn autos, stores and hotels with the original slogans — complete with flowered mas-

No room on McGovern delegation Top state Demos may lose out

By DOUG WILLIS

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Some top California Democrats, such as former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, actor Warren Beatty or Sen. Alan Cranston, may not find a place on California's delegation to the Democratic National Convention, a delegation leader said Friday.

But the way is being cleared for some black student leaders to go to Miami Beach as part of Sen. George McGovern's 371-member California delegation. Assemblyman Willie L. Brown said in an Associated Press interview.

BROWN also said Assembly Speaker Bob Mottet, who was co-chairman of Sen. Edmund Muskie's California campaign, Berkeley Mayor Warren Widener and former Los Angeles City Councilman Thomas Bradley will definitely be added to the McGovern delegation.

The 238 members of the delegation who were elected by voters in Tuesday's primary were scheduled to meet at the International Hotel at the Los Angeles International Airport Saturday to fill 33 vacant slots on the delegation and elect delegation leaders.

But Brown said there will have to be "some hard decisions" to fill the 33 slots and that some big names may be left off the delegation.

"WE'VE GOT to elect them by congressional districts, and the districts where all the people are filled up," Brown said.

"Pat Brown, Jerry Brown, Alan Cranston, Warren Beatty — they're all in the same congressional district. There are 10 Democrats in that district who are equally deserving and there's just one opening."

"I don't know anyone who's been with McGovern from the start who is going to volunteer to quit the delegation now that we've won the election to let the names on. I'm not working on that," Brown added.

"If it's Sen. Cranston, I don't see how we're going to find places for any of the others," he said.

JERRY BROWN is the nickname for the former governor's son, State Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Willie Brown, who is one of only four state legislators who joined the McGovern delegation when it was organized in February and March, also has been described in published reports as a front-runner for election as chairman of the delegation.

Commenting on those reports, Brown said "plans have been made" to elect three cochairmen — himself, Assemblyman John Burton and a yet-to-be-picked woman delegate.

Brown, one of the most influential black lawmakers in the State Legislature, and Burton, chairman of McGovern's Northern California campaign, are both from San Francisco.

Brown said the woman cochairman would probably be from Southern California.

HE ALSO said he has called a meeting of all 56

black members of the McGovern delegation just prior to the Saturday morning meeting to map strategy to elect as many blacks as possible to the remaining 32 slots on the delegation.

He said Widener and Bradley are among black leaders who "deserve" to be on the delegation and will definitely be elected, Brown said.

Two black student body presidents, Lamar Lyons of UCLA and Dan McHenry of Stanford, also deserve spots on the delegation and will be backed by the Brown forces, the assemblyman said.

HHH rejects idea of having Wallace as running mate

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey said Friday there was no more chance he and Gov. George C. Wallace would be running mates "than there is of my being an astronaut on the next moon flight."

Humphrey said that though the Alabama governor might have enough clout to influence the outcome of the Democratic race, he "is not my kind of Democrat."

At a news conference Wednesday in Houston, Humphrey said he could accept Wallace as a running mate if Wallace accepted the Democratic party platform. But Humphrey added at the time, newsmen misinterpreted his Houston remarks about Wallace.

"I think it's highly unrealistic that George Wallace and Hubert Humphrey would be on the ticket."

"I think that this is just the iffy kind of question which some of you in the news have tried to interpret in a way I consider to be unfair, illogical and unrealistic," he said.

The subject of a Humphrey - Wallace coalition was brought up at the textile workers convention earlier Friday by the Rev. Jesse Jackson of Chicago, director of Operation PUSH — People United to Save Humanity.

"I can't believe he's turned his back on the whole thing. I don't understand it. I think it's dishonest," Jackson told the convention.

"We fondly remember Mr. Humphrey in 1948, trying to lead us into the 20th Century."

"BUT TODAY," he continued, "we see Humphrey trying to push us back to the 19th century with his making overtures to George Wallace."

Agnew rips 'leap year lollipops' by Demos

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Vice President Spiro Agnew Friday attacked Democratic tax schemes as "leap year lollipops" and named the party's presidential front-runner Sen. George McGovern in repeated and specific radical frames.

In the Los Angeles Convention Center's Petree Hall, tant with security, Agnew told 1,600 at a Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce luncheon that the Democrats have no issues. Lacking issues "they revived the most shopworn theme in political campaigning: the old soak-the-rich, share-the-wealth play handed down from William Jennings Bryan to Norman Thomas (long time Socialist presidential candidate), from Norman Thomas to Henry Wallace and from Henry Wallace to George McGovern.

Such radical schemes are never bought by the American electorate, Agnew said, because they just don't work. He quoted Time magazine, even with its "ultraliberal tilt" as finding McGovern's $1,000 per person income supplement plan as radical and "reminiscent of the days when Huey Long promised to make 'every man a king.'"

Contrasting McGovern's "slapdash proposals flung out daily and altered every other day" with President Nixon's, the Vice President noted that the New York Times concluded that McGovern was "monumentally incorrect in his cost and revenue calculations" on all of his tax proposals — Sen. Hubert Humphrey too.

Denying Democratic implications that the rich pay less taxes than the poor, Agnew said the opposition party leaders cite the 106 Americans who earned over $200,000 in 1970 yet paid no federal income tax. He said Nixon's 1969 Tax Reform Act caught up with almost 200 in that category and the 106 remaining amounted to a reduction of two-thirds. Besides that, Agnew said, there were 15,000 in that bracket who did pay taxes—an average of $177,000 each for a total of about 2.7 billion.

Referring to so-called tax loopholes Agnew said that almost every exemption and deduction on the books was originally introduced "either to make the law more equitable or to serve a national purpose." He mentioned state and municipal bonds, charity contributions and deductions for mortgage interest, medical payments, casualty losses and support of dependents.

As a result of Nixon's 1969 tax reform measure and the Revenue Act of 1971, Agnew said, "the nation's corporations and top-income individuals are paying more in income taxes and the nation's lower and middle-income individuals are paying less."

"Unlike Senator McGovern I do have the figures: For the four calendar years, 1969 through 1972, corporate income taxes will have been increased by a total of $4.9 billion over what they would have been under the law prior to 1969. During the same period individual income taxes will have been decreased by $18.9 billion."

Nixon administration tax changes, he said, have favored the poor at the expense of the wealthy. For those making less than $3,000 in 1971, Agnew said, income taxes decreased by 82 per cent; $3,000 to $5,000 bracket, decreased 43 per cent. Incomes of over $100,000 got a tax increase of over 7 per cent.

Security forces cleared the huge hall a half hour before the vice-president's scheduled noon arrival in order "to secure the room." Their chore included opening 300 locker doors just outside the hall for inspection.

An advisory informed the media that Agnew would grant no personal interviews, that no one would be admitted to the hall after 12 noon, photographing Agnew would be done only in a two-minute period just before his talk and no one would be allowed to leave the hall until Agnew left.

Agnew received only one burst of applause during his speech, when he said President Nixon has eliminated the Democrats' best issues one by one. But the throng gave Agnew enthusiastic, standing applause as he entered and for almost a minute when he ended his talk.

Not in his script, but a highlight, were a series of introductory gags. A sampling: After the California primary Senator Humphrey was seen sitting on a stool in Schwab's Drug Store waiting to be discovered. Then he went to Grauman's Chinese Theater to have his tongue placed in cement.

McGovern's people, Agnew said, had champagne and caviar at Chasen's after the primary. Dr. Benjamin Spock "and his supporter shared a sausage pizza at Shakey's."

He kidded County Supervisor Warren Dorn for having to face a runoff election. "It must be awful not to know if you're going to be on the ticket in November!"

In another gag reference to his own prospects for again running on the ticket with Nixon, Agnew said he had been invited to a barbecue at former Treasury Secretary John Connally's ranch. "It took me two hours to cut myself down from the spit!" Agnew said it does give him a twinge to see Connally's cattle branded with the vice presidential seal.

John N. Mitchell, chairman of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, and Glenn J. Sedam Jr., the committee's general counsel, asked for investigations of the circumstances surrounding the ad and prosecution of "the persons involved." They said it appears to violate the Federal Elections Campaign Act of 1971, governing campaign practices.

Sedam's request went to W. Pat Jennings, clerk of the House, and Elmer B. Staats, comptroller general. They, and the secretary of the Senate, are empowered to check on whether violations of the 1971 law have occurred and, if so, to submit the violations to the attorney general for action.

Mitchell addressed a second letter to John W. Gardner, head of the self-styled citizens' lobby Common Cause, asking that the organization to investigate.

Impeach-Nixon ad probe demanded

WASHINGTON — The Committee for the Re-election of the President Friday called for investigations of an advertisement in the New York Times proposing the impeachment of President Nixon.

The two-page ad, carried May 31, said Nixon should be impeached for what it called "high crimes and misdemeanors" in connection with his Vietnam war policies.

The ad was published by a group calling itself "The National Committee for Impeachment." Its honorary chairman was listed as Ernest Gruening, former Democratic senator from Alaska.

Wallace will be able to go to Miami

SILVER SPRING, Md. — Dr. Joseph F. Schanno, who is treating wounded Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, said Friday the governor will be able to attend the Democratic National Convention next month.

"He is doing beautifully," Dr. Schanno said. Dr. Schanno said Wallace has made fine progress and barring complications—and Schanno said he foresees none — Wallace will make it to the political convention.

Wallace was shot May 15 while campaigning for the Democratic nomination for president at a shopping center in Laurel, Md.

Dr. Schanno said Wallace is able to be transferred "anytime" from Holy Cross Hospital here to Alabama. But he said both Wallace and his wife, Cornelia, feel there is no reason to move him immediately. He said Wallace does not care to leave Holy Cross now because he is satisfied with its personnel and his overall treatment.

Ethel Kennedy, wife of assassinated Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, visited Wallace for nearly an hour at the hospital Friday. She is still on crutches from a skiing accident.

Welfare system revised U.S. to prosecute cheaters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government is preparing a nationwide federal system to prosecute welfare cheats if President Nixon's welfare reform passes Congress, an administration official said Friday.

Under the plan, those suspected of fraud — filing more than one application, lying about family size or income, claiming that checks were not received when they were — would be prosecuted in federal rather than local courts.

"This feature will be publicized so that it may serve as a deterrent," said Richard P. Nathan, deputy undersecretary in the Health, Education and Welfare Department.

He said the "national system for the prosecution of cases of fraud" would be one of 11 unique features if Congress goes along with federal administration of all welfare programs for needy families, the aged, blind and disabled.

Other features would include a national system to track down deserting fathers and make them support their families and a master record of information about all adults and families on welfare.

Nathan said the proposal envisioned fraud being a federal misdemeanor punishable by a $1,000 fine and/or a year in prison.

"Although the number of recipients who deliberately falsify information is small, even isolated instances of abuse serve to undermine public confidence in and support for government's role in aiding the poor," Nathan said in a speech for Colorado welfare directors in Lake City.

The only official government statistics on the extent of welfare fraud show it occurs in about 1 per cent of all cases. But up to 25 per cent of all recipients either may be ineligible for aid because of agency errors or not receiving the right amounts of aid.

Nathan said "the present welfare system is particularly vulnerable to errors and abuse."

"The principle emphasis in design of the (new) system will be to assure the payment of the right amount to the right person on a timely basis," he added.

"HEW's latest study on fraud showed that 3,000 cases were prosecuted by local law enforcement officials in 1970 with eight states accounting for 90 per cent of the prosecution — California, which accounted for over one-half of them; Connecticut; Illinois; Maryland; Michigan; New York; Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Despite lower figure by Senate panel 20% Social Security rise seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservatives on the Senate Finance Committee succeeded Friday in holding a general increase in Social Security benefits to 10 per cent. However, Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., predicted the Senate would change it to 20 per cent on the floor.

The 20 per cent figure was rejected on a 7-7 tie vote.

But Long pointed out that 64 of the Senate's 100 members, including himself, have announced they will vote for 20 when the body considers the bill.

Adoption of the 10 per cent boost came as the committee completed its work on benefits in the massive Social Security-welfare reform bill.

The panel put over until Monday its final vote on approving the measure and sending it to the Senate for debate.

On Monday, Long said, the committee will act on higher Social Security payroll taxes to pay for the new benefits.

THE BILL provides for many Social Security increases for special groups as well as the across-the-board hike. The increase would be made retroactive to June 1.

It is unlikely the boost finally decided upon will be reflected in Social Security checks until October or November, since it usually takes three months after an increase is signed into law for it to be paid to the 27 million recipients.

The House, in passing the bill last year, also voted for a June 1, 1972, effective date and approved a 5 per cent general increase.

'Big 3' sue U.S. in emission ruling

DETROIT (UPI) — The nation's "big three" automakers once again are testing the federal government's regulatory power — this time over emission standards for 1975 cars which the auto companies claim they cannot meet.

General Motors and Chrysler have filed requests with the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington asking for a review of a federal decision to deny their request for a one-year delay in implementing the standards.

Ford was expected to act before a Monday deadline and American Motors, smallest of the auto companies, said it would abide by whatever decision is reached in the court fight.

It is the third time the automakers have gone into court to gain concessions in meeting standards they feel are too stringent.

In 1967, the companies fought a standard on interior protection for passengers. They dropped the suits when a compromise on relaxed standards was reached.

A second case — involving passive restraint systems, including air bags, for 1975 cars — still is pending in the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

That suit, filed in April, is similar to those filed this week because they claim the auto companies need more time to develop devices that will not only work, but will not wear out quickly.

Antipollution standards which were written into the 1970 Clean Air Act for 1975 models could be delayed by one year at the discretion of William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the federal Environmental Protection Agency. Last May 12 Ruckelshaus refused to grant the one-year delay, claiming the automakers were not able to establish that technology doesn't exist to meet the standards.

"Talk about violence in the streets!"

'Fragmented' curbs on air piracy hit

BOSTON (UPI) Chairman Secor D. Browne of the Civil Aeronautics Board said Friday "there's no one in charge" of the federal antihijacking program and that it is divided among too many agencies to be effective.

"Aircraft and airport security is fragmented among various federal, state and local authorities," he said. "None of them has responsibility and authority."

BROWNE, in a speech to the Aero Club of New England, complained that the government's antihijacking program "in many cases consisted of issuing new regulations putting new burdens on airlines and airport operations."

After issuing the rules, he said the government often makes a public statement "saying everything is fine."

But Browne said the airlines do not have the ability to set up a completely successful antihijacking program and need more help from the government.

"It is necessary for the airlines to improve their procedures," he said. "Crew and ground personnel training for purposes of prevention and enforcement is vital. Expanded electronic surveillance is also essential."

But he said the cost of an effective program is too great for the industry to bear. He recommended the government take three basic steps:

- Provide greater financing for antihijacking programs.

Hijacker reward fund set up by 5 airlines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board Friday approved an agreement by five airlines — American, Eastern, Pan American, Trans World and United — to post a $250,000 reward fund for the capture of hijackers.

In approving the agreement, the board termed the action "a step in the direction of reducing the likelihood" of future hijackings.

Under the agreement, the Air Transport Association will administer the fund and establish rewards for specific incidents. These will go to persons who supply information leading to the arrest and conviction "of previously unknown persons who extort, or attempt to extort, money from any airline by threatening or causing injury to its passengers."

The five airlines also invited other airlines "and interested parties" to add to the fund.

Deuk drops bid to keep death penalty

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Sen. sponsor of an initiative measure which would allow Californians to vote on the death penalty issue, Friday dropped parallel legislation because, he said the initiative has qualified for the November ballot.

Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, said petitions bearing more than one million signatures already had been turned in to county clerks. Friday was the deadline, because the clerks need 20 days to validate the signatures before June 29, when at least 520,806 valid signatures must be certified to the secretary of state.

There were more than 450,000 signatures collected in Los Angeles County alone, he said.

The parallel legislation was in the form of a proposed constitutional amendment. On May 2, the measure fell two votes short of being approved in the Senate, but Deukmejian kept the proposal alive by a parliamentary maneuver.

Friday, however, was the deadline for qualifying a proposed amendment for the November election by legislative action. Still minus the votes needed for Senate approval, and faced with the further task of obtaining approval by an assembly committee and then the full Assembly, Deukmejian moved to have the measure placed in the inactive file.

This device keeps the proposal alive in case the initiative fails to qualify for the ballot, he said. If the measure fails to qualify—and there is a lawsuit challenging petitions circulated in northern California—he can still seek approval of the proposed amendment for a statewide vote sometime next year or in 1974.

He said he was confident the initiative would qualify for this year's general election Nov. 6.

The proposed amendment would, in effect, overturn a Feb. 18 decision by the State Supreme Court holding that capital punishment was "cruel or unusual" and, therefore, in violation of the California Constitution.

Stiffer gun crime penalties win OK

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee Friday gave quick approval to a bill increasing penalties for the use of firearms during commission of a felony but rejected three convict-related measures.

The legislation was sponsored by Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, who said more strict controls were needed on the paroling of prisoners "because of the spiraling crime rate in California."

Richardson told the committee that 714,000 "major" felonies were committed in the state last year, compared with 250,000 in 1960.

On a 9-3 vote, the committee sent to the floor Richardson's bill requiring that anyone who used a gun during commission of a felony be sentenced to prison for 10 years for the first offense and 20 years for any subsequent convictions.

Currently, Richardson said, use of a gun during commission of a crime is punishable by a minimum term of five years but that a convict can become eligible for parole in 20 months or for work furlough prior to that.

The committee, on a 3-7 vote, rejected a bill that would permit parole of a prisoner only if he had served the minimum term prescribed by law. Currently the Adult Authority and Department of Corrections can make a prisoner eligible for parole before he has served the minimum term.

Also defeated were bills that would:

— Make it unlawful to release any prisoner on work furlough programs and on passes for any reason prior to serving a minimum sentence, by a 1-11 vote.

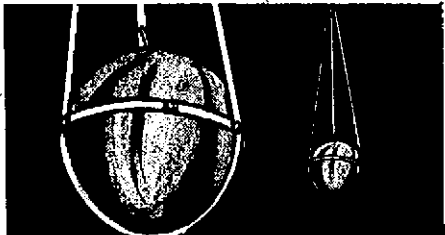

— Require revocation of a parole of a person convicted of a felony crime while on parole and that the sentence for such an act be served consecutively as opposed to concurrently, by a 6-4 vote, one short of the minimum required for passage.

Mariner 9 'survives', new Mars photos transmitted

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer

PASADENA — The critical "survival mode" past, Mariner 9 sent back the first pictures in two months Friday of distant Mars. Anxious scientists announced the tiny spacecraft's television cameras endured perfectly the worrisome period.

Choruses of "there it is" rippled through the control center at the Jet Propulsion Lab here at 10:40 a.m. PDT when the first picture appeared on television monitors showing a rugged, crater-packed region 1,200 miles from the South Pole.

"Beautiful. That looks really good. That's good clean data," beamed assistant project manager Ted Pounder as he intently studied the monitor, sipping coffee and munching a doughnut.

BUT THE EAGER scientists were frustrated later Friday in their immediate attempt to study the first closeup picture ever taken of Mars' puzzling North Pole. Problems with electronics on the ground prevented them from assessing the historic photo although it was properly recorded on magnetic tape and film and was expected to be available Saturday.

The North Pole was obscured from spacecraft passes in the winter and spring by thick clouds but the clouds are expected to disappear now. The pole never has been visible from earth telescopes because this clearing occurs only when the planet is very far away.

MARINER 9 began a survival mode late in March. Twice each day it passed behind the planet out of the sun's view and had to switch from solar panel to battery power. To conserve the precious batteries, cameras and instruments were turned off.

The two months were an intense period for controllers, because a single malfunction could have doomed the spacecraft.

After studying data Friday, Mariner 9 officials declared the spacecraft just fit as before.

Scientists are eager to resume the study of Mars, which is now 225 million miles from Earth. Mariner 9 already has rewritten textbooks on the planet and the experts want the first-ever pictures of the North Pole to fill in blank spots in their map of the planet.

Even more intriguing, however, is finding out what's at the North Pole. Spring is coming to the Martian Northland now, whisking away the clouds.

THE EXPERTS want to know if the North Pole has a permanent cap of water ice like that discovered at the South Pole. They want to know if strange layered formations at the South Pole exist in the north.

Such answers could reveal whether Mars once had great quantities of water and what happened to it.

Marines use lie detector for brain-heart studies

SAN DIEGO — Lie detectors are being used to measure the effects of sleep and lack of sleep on Marine recruits, a Navy psychologist says.

"We think of it as a microscope which can look at subtle little changes," Dr. David Hord testified at a special hearing in U.S. District Court.

He said San Diego recruits are being taught to control brain patterns and heart rate.

Hord was called as a witness in a hearing involving Bruce Debetham, 19, of Imperial Beach, who is charged with possession of heroin.

The prosecution and defense were arguing whether the results of a lie detector test given Debetham should be admitted as evidence.

Hord, supervisory research psychologist at the Navy's neuropsychiatric unit in San Diego, was summoned by the government after defense witnesses agreed the polygraph is reliable when a fully qualified expert operates the test.

Hord called the polygraph a "useful research tool" and discussed types of research it is being used for.

Among defense witnesses were Chris Gugas of Los Angeles, former president of the American Polygraph Association, and Robert Brisentine, formerly in charge of polygraph testing for the Army.

Debetham was arrested last Dec. 4 at the nearby San Ysidro border crossing when authorities said five grams of heroin were found in a car which he was driving. His trial will follow a ruling by U.S. District Court Judge Gordon Thompson Jr. on the polygraph test.

Obesity alone ruled no bar to promotion

CHICAGO — Obesity by itself is no reason to deny a public employee a promotion for a job he otherwise is qualified for, the Cook County Civil Service Commission ruled Friday.

The decision came on a petition filed with the commission by nearly two dozen women, all overweight and all employees of the County Public Aid Department.

They claimed they had been denied promotion to higher job classifications and, therefore, higher pay, because of their size.

The women range in weight from 172 to 308 pounds.

"Unless obesity is accompanied by some other detrimental factor," said

Commission Chairman Joseph Solon, "it should not bar anyone from a promotion under these circumstances."

The controversy began last month over a physical examination required of employees being considered for higher job status.

The medical department recommended no promotion for the women whose weight exceeded the standard set by the county.

Charles Barnhill, an attorney representing the Independent Union of Social Service Employees to which the women belong, argued that their new duties were not substantially different from those they already performed and required no additional physical duress.

Hopes Chinese team will demonstrate

AMA seeks joint acupuncture study

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Contending that "medical science has no national boundary," the president of the American Medical Association Friday called for joint American-Chinese efforts in acupuncture.

Dr. Wesley W. Hall said he had hoped a team of Chinese physicians from the Mainland could demonstrate acupuncture at the AMA national convention in San Francisco next week, but said "things are still tied up in the different layers of government and it is being talked about back and forth."

Hall and the AMA have asked the State Department for assistance in achieving the joint acupuncture study.

"If it can ease the risk of surgery and pain we want to know about it," Hall, of Reno, Nev., said in an interview. "Disease and medical science have no national boundary. There are good doctors everywhere."

In a speech later to 350 members of a five-state medical symposium covering Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and the Dakotas, Hall said the nation's medical picture "has never been as bad as some have painted it — and it is much brighter today in some respects than it was 10 years ago."

"For some reason or another, there have been people in this country who have publicized the health care 'crisis' we have in America, while at the same time not saying one single thing about the vast accomplishments of medical science, and quite naturally, this includes the tremendous advancements in hospital care," Hall said.

Hall said much of the increased medical costs which have created public dissatisfaction with the health industry are "not only unavoidable but probably totally justified — such as the wage increase for formerly poorly-paid hospital workers, and the expense of medical procedures which were unknown 10 or 20 years ago."

Long-distance hypnosis alleviates hemophilia

DENVER — A Denver child psychiatrist is attacking hemophilia through the use of hypnosis and now has expanded that treatment to a 2,000-mile experiment by telephone that apparently worked.

Dr. Wallace LaBaw said the program does not "alter the genetic disposition to bleed, but we do minimize one of the primary environmental aggravations," that causes bleeding.

The whole idea of the program is to teach patients to be able to induce trances by themselves to prevent the buildup of anxieties which frequently lead to internal hemorrhaging in hemophiliacs, LaBaw said.

LABAW tried a new twist Thursday night, contacting by phone from Denver two of his patients who had moved to New York and coaching them into a trance.

Elwin Gree, 23, and Richard Petterson, 22, the two New York patients, said the experiment worked well and they were able to go into a trance as the result of the doctor's coaching over the phone.

Results of LaBaw's program have yet to be finalized. A check after the first 10 months showed "nine out of 10 would benefit from the program and we expect a similar result when this program is com-

Donor changes his mind--gives extra $1 million

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Dr. Cecil H. Green contributed $1.2 million Friday to the Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation, then changed his mind and pledged another $1 million.

A news conference was held, during which it was announced that Dr. Green, a founder and director of Texas Instruments, Inc., Dallas, and his wife, Ida, were donating $1.2 million for construction of Scripps' new facilities on Torrey Pines Mesa.

A question was asked about financing some sophisticated equipment.

Green then said he had been thinking about that and then announced he might provide another $1 million.

pleted," LaBaw said. At least one of LaBaw's patients says the program has produced dramatic results. Pat Conley, 22, of Denver, said before he began the hypnotic treatment, he was admitted to hospitals for transfusions about nine times each year. In the four and one-half years he has been under treatment, Conley said, he has had to have only two transfusions.

"WE'RE getting very good results, our program is being emulated by other medical centers around the country," LaBaw said.

He said a full report on the current program which is comparing 10 patients in a control group undergoing the hypnotic treatment with 10 in another group is expected to be ready later this year.

"Chances are greater than 99 out of 100 that a subject receiving the trance treatment would use less blood than a subject not receiving treatment," LaBaw said.

LaBaw is a clinical instructor and consultant in medical hypnosis on the volunteer faculty of the University of Colorado Medical School.

WASHINGTON — "When you come to Washington to work for the government, you're a bureaucrat and you're a dirty, stinking louse because everyone knows you only play politics."

"I've never been in politics in my life. I am a technician."

William Crowley, the bold, new style technocrat who uttered those words in an interview Friday with the Washington Bureau, heads the five-member Postal Rate Commission which last week revealed its recommendations on postal rate increases.

AFTER THE recommendations were transmitted to the nine-member governing board of the U.S. Postal Service, some heavy mail users who sought lower rates and some congressional spokesmen seemed to be saying that "this technocrat is a dirty, stinking louse, too."

The U.S. Postal Service, which begins and ends the rate-making cycle, was seeking price boosts that would have brought $1.5 billion in additional yearly revenues. The Crowley panel trimmed it by $78.3 million and hailed the action "a landmark decision."

The recommendations, meticulously outlined in a book-size report that easily weighs two pounds, are the result of 16 months of exhaustive public hearings. It required more than 13,000 pages of transcript to record the verbatim appeals for lower rates which came from 154 organizations whose life depends on mail service.

Newspaper and magazine publishers, direct mail advertisers, mail order merchandisers, post card manufacturers and utility firms lined up during the 18-month period to plead for lower rates.

THE COMMISSIONERS' recommended cut barely dents the reduction that was sought by the big mail users. Some are predicting that many mail-dependent businesses, particularly rural newspapers and large circulation magazines such as Look, which folded last year partly because of increased mail costs, have been delivered a death blow.

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of the House subcommittee on postal service, has invited some big mail users to describe their experiences with the new procedures which the rate commission exercised to make the new rates. Those hearings, which begin Monday, will have author Herman Wouk and representatives of an electric utility as the lead-off witnesses. Appearing Wednesday will be Stanford Smith, President of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

"It's going to be a real hot session about the new rates, though," a subcommittee aide predicted.

Crowley, who retired as executive vice-president of the Northern Illinois Gas Co. to accept President Nixon's appointment to the $40,000-a-year job, is apparently unaware of the ripples of criticism which have greeted the recommendations. This is not surprising. A highly restrictive code of ethics imposed on the commission members, was designed to insulate them from the old-style pressure tactics which mail lobbyists have exerted against Congress since the Post Office was established in 1792.

BECAUSE OF the elaborate rules, lobbyists who frequently contacted members of Congress about postal rates in the past are carefully avoiding contacts that might seem improper with the rate commissioners. National Journal reported in an article last year which described the precedent-setting standards.

While Crowley says he doesn't know about the reactions (at least he isn't talking about them), he does know that he was handed a difficult job and he feels he performed it as quickly and conscientiously as possible.

Thumbing through the pages of the two-pound result of his work, Crowley said the rate-making case "was probably the largest rate case ever filed before any regulatory body... it was the first case considered by our commission."

"THIS IS not an easy job. A case of this magnitude would ordinarily run for three or four years and we put it out in 16 months. In doing that, we worked a lot of people awfully hard and I think the taxpayers really got their money's worth."

The request for the increase was filed with the rate commission not long after it was established. Because the commission was unable to act on the request within a 90-day statutory limitation, the higher rates became effective on a temporary basis on May 16, 1971.

Crowley said the commission was "at a horrible disadvantage" when the request was received.

"When it was filed, I was sitting here with four other commissioners and a few employees. I had to go right to work getting a staff together while studying the request and making preparations for the hearings," he said.

NOW THAT the recommendations have been made, the Postal Service governing board has 30 days to accept, reject or modify the recommendations.

They cannot totally reject the recommendations, Crowley explained, because "someone would institute a court proceeding against them."

And, if the governing board accepts the recommendations, they can still be taken to court by a dissatisfied mail user anyway. However, while the decision is under appeal, the new rates would remain effective until there is a reversing decision by the court.

The rate-making procedure seems to lump one level of jurisdiction upon another. The Postal Service makes the initial request, the commission refines it, the Postal Service accepts or rejects it and someone finally takes it to the final arbitrator who is a court judge.

THE COMPLICATED system was the result of a wary Congress which gave independence to the Post Office but, in so doing, made provision for tight control.

The invisible hand of congressional control over the actions of the reorganized Post Office is illustrated by that code of ethics which Crowley and his fellow commissioners must obey.

Written by the Civil Service Commission after Congress urged President Nixon to make the assignment, the 39-page typewritten code "orders us to be purer than Caesar's wife," Crowley said. "Our rules are stronger than the rules which employes in the White House operate under."

For example, White House employes are permitted to accept unsolicited gifts of no more value than $50. The limit on gifts to the rate commissioners is $2.

NOBODY has attempted to give me anything," Crowley said. "I've ridden in nobody's airplanes or cars. I've gone to nobody's cocktail parties. I've accepted no dinners, lunches, calendars, chewing gum, cigars, drinks, golf games... no nothing," he said.

He can only accept a free meal provided he is a speaker at a luncheon or dinner.

Crowley and two other commissioners attended a luncheon held by the Direct Mail Advertising Association last year. Crowley spoke to the group. Because the other two commissioners did not, they paid for their meals.

WHEN Crowley first set up his office, it was located in the Post Office building because it was the only space available at the time. Some industry lobbyists were concerned by the location. Crowley wasn't comfortable with it, either, and moved to another location as soon as possible. While in the Post Office building, though, Crowley refused to eat in the cafeteria or use the elevators in order to avoid contact with postal employes.

The insulation has brought what may be the first regulatory decision that is completely devoid of lobbyist pressure and it is unique by Washington standards.

But the bold, new-breed technocrat has upset a few congressional minds by his fundamental behavior.

One of them, Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., said the recommendations proved that "there is something to be said for political decisions which are made by the compromise process after all."

WALDIE, a member of the House post office panel, is particularly disturbed by the new rates which affect second class postage.

"These recommendations will have a high impact on the principles behind second class mail, the category which has been historically subsidized by government because it is the means by which society gets its information and education," he said.

Among the types of publications which are hurt most by the rate increase, he said, are small-town newspapers and the special press such as Labor Union papers and "the kind of press you don't think much about but which expresses a needed viewpoint to the country-at-large to put these people out of business ends the diversity of information and views which is necessary to a free society."

"IT WOULD have the effect of making the dissemination of news and views a lot more sterile than is presently the case," The California Democrat said.

College severs tie to church

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The College of St. Mary severed its formal ties with the Roman Catholic Church Friday and turned over its assets to a private corporation.

But Sister Mary Angella, who will remain as president of the 600-student school, said there are no plans to cut the spiritual ties.

John M. Shonsey, an Omaha banker and chairman of the college's new board of directors, said the change was made to give the college a stronger business approach to administration and to avoid restrictions in government grants to church-related schools.

The college board will consist of Shonsey, eight businessmen and six Mercy nuns.

Nearly all of the school's students are women, although a few men have enrolled in recent years, most of them on a part-time basis.

Mrs. Lincoln may have lived there

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Well, now, the red brick house on West Main Street just might have been the girlhood home of Mrs. Abraham Lincoln after all.

Historians have said it was but an expert restoration architect who passed by the house last spring cast doubts on its authenticity when he said it didn't look like it was built in the right period.

However, the architect, Walter Macomber, examined the house more closely Thursday and decided that, although many changes have been made over the years, it basically is of the period 1818-20.

HISTORIANS say the house was built at that time, purchased by Mrs. Lincoln's father in 1832 and was Mary Ann Todd's home for the following seven years.

The history books also say the Lincolns visited the home three times after their marriage.

Efforts have been made under former Govs. Edward T. Breathitt and Louis B. Nunn to preserve the house and make it into a state shrine.

In recent years, it has been used as a storeroom.

Briefly...

Religions of presidents, COCU reply, TV debate

By LES RODNEY

With the emergence of former Methodist minister Sen. George McGovern as probable nominee of the Democratic Party, the question arises whether we have ever had a Methodist president.

We have, four of them, though none elected in this century — Polk, Andrew Johnson, Grant and McKinley.

Actually, the only major Protestant grouping which has not yet had a member in the White House is the Lutheran Church, which if you put together its three denominations would total almost nine million, a strong third in American Protestantism, behind only the Baptists and Methodists.

Historically, this probably reflects the fact that Lutherans have mostly traced their ancestry back to Germany and Scandinavia (though this is increasingly less of a factor), and presidents have largely come from Anglo-Saxon background.

In addition to the Lutherans, there have been no presidents from the Mormon, Jewish, Christian Scientist or Brethren sections of the American population, nor from any of the smaller or newer fundamentalist groupings (Churches of Christ, Church of God, Nazarenes).

Politics seen

United Press International Some Protestants suspect President Nixon of playing election-year politics with the touchy issue of aid to parochial schools.

The suspicion has been voiced by the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs and by Americans United for Separation of Church and State, among others.

They thought the "parochial" question had been settled when the Supreme Court ruled last June that state aid to church-related schools is unconstitutional.

But President Nixon, addressing the National Catholic Educational Association Convention in April, declared unequivocally that the government "must and will find ways to provide" financial aid to parochial schools.

RELIGION

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM—A-9
Long Beach, Calif., Sat., June 18, 1972

Adventists, Witnesses, the Pentecostal churches, etc.) President Nixon is, of course, a Quaker, as was Hoover.

With the breaking of the Roman Catholic barrier by John Kennedy, it seems reasonable to say that one's religious affiliation in itself would no longer automatically defeat any candidate for president. Just so long as the public was satisfied that the candidate would not intrude particular positions of his faith into the office.

To wrap up the statistics on the presidents and their church memberships:

The Episcopal Church is out in front with nine — Washington, Madison, Monroe, William Henry Harrison, Tyler, Taylor, Pierce, Arthur and Franklin Roosevelt. (Jefferson, originally an Episcopalian, later became a deist, said he was a "disciple of the doctrines of Jesus Christ" and commended Unitarianism.)

Presbyterians are next with six — Jackson, Buchanan, Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison, Wilson, Eisenhower. (Lincoln attended Presbyterian services when he went to church, but never joined.)

Methodist presidents number four, as mentioned, and there have been four Unitarians — John and John Quincy Adams, Fillmore and Taft. There have been two Baptists — Harding and Truman; two Christian Church Disciples of Christ members — Garfield and Lyndon Johnson; two Dutch Reformed — Van Buren and Theodore Roosevelt; the two Quakers, as mentioned; one Congregationalist, Coolidge; and one Roman Catholic, Kennedy.

Checking out the other Democratic contenders, Humphrey is a Congregationalist (United Church of Christ), Wallace a Methodist and Muskie a Roman Catholic.

TWO BUSLOADS of college age young men and women will leave today at 4 p.m. from in front of First Brethren Church for "Expo '72" which begins at the Dallas Cotton Bowl Monday. Others are flying and driving from this area to the evangelistic training rally, which is sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ.

THE GENERAL Secretary of the Consultation on Church Union (COCU) sends along some thoughts on its prospects after the stunning withdrawal of the United Presbyterians from the nine denominations unity talks.

Rev. Dr. Paul A. Crow says the Presbyterian vote to withdraw, indicates a "tragic misunderstanding of the Consultation" as stemming only from top church leadership instead of being identified with the "little" people. In the country's mood of distrust of established leadership, this is seen as important.

"Church union," Crow says, "is not a merging of ecclesiastical structures, but a search for a new community, unlike the church any of us has known in our past separateness, and which visibly expresses the oneness of Christ and His church for a broken world. Such a consultation as COCU surely carries the potential of rebirth."

A similar theme was expressed by Rev. Dr. George G. Beazley, chairman of COCU and Disciples of Christ leader, in his formal statement on the Presbyterian withdrawal.

"We reaffirm our belief that God wills the visible unity of His church as an instrument of His reconciliation," he said. "We know that the pilgrim to a truly united church is the way of the cross."

Paying tribute to the Presbyterian Church for its role in the original consultation, he added: "We thank God for their leadership and participation. We shall use the responses of their congregations and members to the proposed plan of union... Church union inevitably involves failures and disappointments as well as renewal and resurrection."

"As the churches participating in the Consultation move forward we will evaluate responses to the plan of union and the suggestions received from thousands of local churches, continue the search for new structures of mission, seek new experiments in local parish forms, search for inclusiveness in our existing communities out of concern for the Gospel and justice, engage in interdenominational fellowship, and work on a common liturgy for baptism and marriage. All of our experience and our openness to new directions will be utilized as we engage in redrafting a plan of union."

"We issue again the invitation to other communions who share our purpose to become full participants with us."

It is an eloquent and nobly motivated defense of the Consultation. But it is not likely to overcome the strong feeling that the current has turned in quite another direction from formal unification. And COCU has never really met head-on the conservative evangelical theological claim that the Biblical plea that "all may be one" means only individual spiritual unity in Christ, not all of His church in actual unity.

Too bad there can't be a nationally televised debate on such a fascinating topic, in prime time, not 7 a.m. Sunday morning, with men like Eugene Carson Blake, Stove and David Colwell against such as Carl Henry, Paul Ramsey and Billy Graham, no holds barred. Don't think for a moment that such an event, properly advertised, wouldn't draw a blockbuster national audience rating!

Struggle between Mo. Synod leader and seminary erupts

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Moves by the head of a major Protestant denomination to tighten control over its theological teaching this week exploded into a sharper controversy, wrecking a semitruce and portending wide-open struggle ahead.

The conflict, smoldering for two years in the 2.8-million-member Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, produced these new repercussions:

—In an unprecedented action backed by the church's president, Rev. Dr. J. A. O. Preus, trustees of the denomination's top seminary, Concordia in St. Louis, were overruled and an Old Testament professor fired.

—A national accrediting agency put the seminary on probation, saying its academic freedom was compromised, its faculty morale shaken and its educational efficiency seriously impaired.

Blaming the crisis on an investigation of the faculty pressed by Dr. Preus and on the new action undercutting normal board control of the seminary by its president, Rev. Dr. John H. Tietjen said:

"Fear is really the basic ingredient of the problem that has been caused here. You can't have honest inquiry if you're afraid to ask questions."

He added that although the faculty was dismayed, it was "grimly determined and standing very closely together as a result of all this. We didn't bring on the situation and we must now look to the whole church to help straighten it out."

Already, some other leaders in the church are developing plans to challenge Dr. Preus' presidency at the denomination's convention next year.

His office referred requests for comment to a press spokesman, who said Dr. Preus supported the dismissal of the Rev. Dr. Arlin Ehlen, an Old Testament scholar, even though the seminary board wanted to keep him.

"The firing, which shattered a qualified agreement on the matter recently reached between Dr. Preus and Dr. Tietjen, was accomplished by intervention of the church's Board of Higher Education, largely appointed by Dr. Preus.

"We're in a state more or less of shock," said Rev. Robert Grunow, director of seminary relations, adding that the seminary board will meet this weekend about the procedure used in undercutting it.

"There have been 'serious infringements' on its prerogatives, the American Association of Theological Schools said in threatening withdrawal of the seminary's accreditation unless corrective steps are taken.

"The seminary has about 800 students, a faculty of 48.

At the heart of the dispute is Dr. Preus' objections to historical-literary methods used in analyzing Scripture and his insistence that various passages such as that about Jonah being swallowed by a big fish be taught as literal fact although considered a parable by most scholars.

Dr. Tietjen said the investigative process carried out at the seminary "has interfered with the normal running of the school" and steps must be taken to "assure its integrity."

He said the dismissed professor used only methods that are conventionally accepted among scholars. "He is a committed Lutheran Christian, using normally accepted tools to get at the meaning of Biblical texts. But apparently there are some who don't want us to do that."

NOTED CHORAL ARTIST HERE

JESTER HAIRSTON, internationally famed choral conductor, arranger and lecturer, who has handled the choral work for many Hollywood movies, and has been sent by the State Department on missions to Africa and Europe, will conduct a concert Sunday, 6 p.m. in First Nazarene Church, 2280 Clark Ave. free to the public. A product of Tufts University and the Juilliard School of Music, his arrangements of Afro-American folk songs and his own compositions are very popular among music educators.

GOINGS ON

Opera stars at 2 churches

Two more opportunities to hear the incomparable opera stars Robert Hale and Dean Wilder, leading bass-baritone with the New York City Opera Co., and leading tenor with the Goldovsky Opera Theater, respectively, in their sacred concert performance, Sunday, 6 p.m., in First Baptist of Lakewood, 5336 Arbor Road, Long Beach, and Tuesday, 7:30 p.m. in Los Altos Brethren, 6565 Stearns St.

The 50-voice Youth Choir of the Church of St. Clement's in El Paso, Tex., which has appeared on TV and cut a popular record, is on a seven-state summer tour and will sing at a folk music Eucharist Sunday, 6 p.m. in All Saints' Episcopal, Colorado and Termino. After the Eucharist the youth of All Saints will sponsor a spaghetti dinner for the donation price of $2 for adults $1 for those under 13, benefit of Mount Calvary Retreat House in Santa Barbara.

The David Lloyd Singers, whose "New Sound" has been well received throughout the Southland, will present a concert Sunday 7:30 p.m. in Palos Verdes Avenue Christian, 2501 Palo Verde Ave.

The Chancel Choir of Lakewood Village Community, Centralia and Sunfield, will present its spring concert Sunday, 8 p.m., with the assistance of the Steeple Singers, offering a variety of anthems, spirituals and songs from Fiddler on the Roof.

"Show Me," a Christian musical of love and concern, will be presented Sunday, 7 p.m. by the Youth Choir of Bellflower First Baptist 9003 Belmont St. accompanied by brass, drums, piano and guitar. The "Come Alive Singers" from the Cincinnati Bible Seminary on a summer tour across the land, will present concerts Monday through Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in First Christian of Downey Fourth and New streets.

The Singing Payne Family of Abilene, Tex., formerly members of Calvary Baptist of Bellflower, who have made ten albums, will present a gospel concert Tuesday, 7:30 p.m. in Bible Baptist, 3835 E. 10th St. . . Tony Fontane, radio, TV and recording star who is familiar to Southland church audiences, will present a sacred concert Sunday, 8:15 p.m. in Mayfair Community Reformed, 6150 Bellflower Blvd., Lakewood. His hit recording of "Cold, Cold Heart" sold more than a million.

Rev. Vernon L. Booker says he will "present and demonstrate new methods of healing" at a forum Thursday, 7:30 p.m. in Los Altos United, 5550 Atherton St. He is just back from a week of lecturing in Ogden, Utah, where he says Weber State College has begun research in extra sensory perception. . . A "Day of Renewal" is being held today from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Rochelle's Restaurant, 3333 Lakewood Blvd., by Inter-Church Renewal Ministry of North Hollywood, with Rev. Joe Jordan speaking.

"To Russia With Love" called an underground evangelistic film about smuggling Bibles into the USSR, will be shown Sunday 7 p.m. in Grace Baptist, 2041 Palo Verde Ave. . . Sidney Taylor will discuss "Tilling the Soil" Sunday 3 p.m. at the Theosophical Society 602 Pacific Ave.

SOME OF 'LORD'S JOYFUL' CHURCH GROUP

Sing their way to Dakota

Thirty-five young people from Long Beach's Christ Lutheran Church, who comprise the musical group "The Lord's Joyful," will leave Friday by chartered bus for an 18-day trip to the Black Hills of South Dakota, where they will attend a Bible camp and work on a Sioux Indian reservation.

En route, they will present programs of music and religious drama at churches in Las Vegas, Salt Lake City, Denver, Goodland, Kans.; Minneapolis, Minn.; and Rapid City and Sioux Falls, S.D. The group is accompanied by three guitarists, piano, bass, drums and tambourine.

The group will present a farewell concert this Sunday at the 8:15 and 11 a.m.

'No theological reason to bar woman priests'

The Roman Catholic Church has been told by one of its best-known theologians there are "no decisive theological reasons" for barring women from ordination to the priesthood.

This position is taken by Father Hans Kung, professor of theology at Tübingen University in Germany, in a book just published in America (by Doubleday) under the title: "Why Priests?"

The title is misleading, Fr. Kung, who previously stirred controversy by questioning papal infallibility, does not go so far as to suggest that priests are unnecessary.

But he does argue that it's unnecessary and undesirable for the church's priesthood to be "exclusively male."

"Full participation of women in the church's life, on the basis of equal rights, is something that belongs to a suitably renewed church today," he says.

"This means not only including women as co-responsible in the different advisory and decision making bodies . . . but also the admission of women to all the church's special ministries and to ordination."

He acknowledges that some "socio-cultural reasons have been advanced against the ordination of women," but says "no decisive theological reasons have been presented" why the priesthood should remain "a men's association."

Seminarian will return, preach

Returning Wednesday to his Lakewood home and to his home congregation will be John Knapp, a third-year student at Luther Theological Seminary at St. Paul, Minn. and a graduate of Lakewood High School and Pacific Lutheran University.

St. Timothy Lutheran Church of Lakewood, Woodruff at Arbor Road, will conduct a special service at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, with the young seminarian preaching.

Criticism: how to give it, take it

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

No one likes to be criticized. I know I don't; and I've had my share, same as you. It sure can hurt to see yourself as some other sees you. But your career, your emotional stability, your happiness often depend upon how you react to criticism. For as sure as shooting, you're going to be on the receiving end.

To hand out criticism creatively is often more difficult than to be able to take it. A new husband, for example, concerned over faults he discovered in his bride, took a sheet of paper and wrote the word "faults" at the top. Then he drew a line down the middle, putting his wife's name on one side and his own on the other. With much enthusiasm, he wrote all the things wrong with his wife. When it came to writing down his own faults, however, the going was much slower. When he finished, he stupidly placed the paper where his wife would see it.

When he returned from work his wife asked, with a glint in her eye and ice in her tone, "did you write this?" showing the paper under his chin.

"WHY, YES, DEAR. A personal inventory. It's a good idea to take a look at yourself every now and then, isn't it?" He expected her to discuss with him the listing of her faults. But to his astonishment, she dismissed her own imperfections with a shrug and coldly said, "What really gets me is that you could be so blind, so shortsighted, so much of a stuffed shirt that you name only a few of your own faults. Let me refresh your memory a bit." She wasn't about to accept that kind and method of criticism and the list only served to get her all riled up about her husband's shortcomings!

Criticism should always be applied considerably and only where necessary. Be careful not to injure anyone's ego. Sometimes for a person's own good or to keep things right in a business organization or other relationship. It is necessary to be forthright. But there is a right and a wrong way to do this.

Before plunging ahead with necessary criticism which you hope may be helpful, ask yourself: "Do I have a compliment I can give as well? Is there a smile on my face and in my heart? Will our talk be in private? Have I considered ways of making my point without unnecessary bluntness? Am I absolutely sure of my facts? Do I know enough to give constructive criticism?" Perhaps the proverb, "Honesty is the best policy," should begin with the word "gentle," for after all, people are sensitive and criticism is a direct attack on a person's self-esteem.

It is easy for the person being criticized to react with resentment and anger. But if all you do is resent criticism you can never turn it to advantage. The Bible, with profound insight into human nature, advises you to pray for your critics; bless them that hurt you. This may seem preposterous to someone smarting under the lash of criticism, but the amazing truth is that it does help. If you force yourself to pray for your critic, the emotional reaction tends to give way to rational considerations. In other words, you cool it.

I REMEMBER a few years ago the dean of a divinity school made a speech in which he said some pretty harsh things about me. When reporters approached me clamoring for a reply, I didn't even know what the dean had said. One of the reporters was more than pleased to tell me.

I was, of course, unhappy about it, but I took a deep breath and commented that my critic was an eminent man whose judgment I respected. Perhaps I would reexamine my message and my methods,

Swan song for Bishop Kennedy

Two decades of leadership under Bishop Gerald Kennedy will come to a close next week when 1,300 representatives of Southern and United Methodist churches hold their 1977 annual conference at Redlands.

Bishop Kennedy, who retires in July, has been their spiritual and administrative leader since 1952, during which time the local church has grown from 345 to 500 congregations, and 175,000 to 245,000 members.

Kennedy's successor will be chosen next month from among five bishops of the church's Western Jurisdiction.

and if there was any error I would try to correct it. I'll never forget the expression on the reporters' faces. That was not the kind of statement they expected, but I was determined to remain calm and treat the attack rationally. It isn't easy, but since there is bound to be criticism, we might as well use it constructively!

For the first time in recent church history, appointments for the 800 ministers will be read Thursday evening in order that the final order of business on Friday can be recognition of Kennedy's 20 years of service to area churches, 24 years as a bishop, and 40 in the ministry.

Among major items to be considered during the week are full participation in "Key 73," a 100-denomination evangelistic program designed to confront every individual in North America with the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

In addition, 59 petitions have been submitted by individual church members, caucuses and district groups seeking a church endorsement of a wide variety of issues from amnesty for conscientious objectors to support for a worker-priest program which would allow ministers to fill secular employment positions and retain their ministerial affiliation with the church.

Southern Baptists back President's war aims

(Combined Wire Services) PHILADELPHIA — The Southern Baptist Convention, largest Protestant denomination in the United States, broke with other church groups this week to support national policy in Southeast Asia.

The 13,000 delegates to the SBC's annual meeting here unanimously approved a measure backing President Nixon's policies in Vietnam, and calling for the return of American prisoners of war.

At other denominational meetings here earlier this year, Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Methodists and other groups voiced opposition to the nation's war policies.

The resolution approved Thursday was actually an amended version of an anti-war resolution defeated earlier. It calls for attainment of "the announced objectives of the United States, namely the independence and self-government of South Vietnam, and the return of American prisoners of war."

At the same time, delegates commended President Nixon for his troop withdrawal policy and his summit meetings in China and Russia "in behalf of peace."

There was a flurry of dissent, and withdrawal of some student support for the resolution on peace when the amendment said the U.S. should quit Indochina only when its announced objectives are attained.

W. Douglas Hahn of Athens, Ga., withdrew his name as a backer of the resolution. He said that the students that he represented demand an immediate end to the war.

Billy Graham told the delegates the church must realize the reality of the devil if it were to come to grips with the problems of modern man.

"The church will remain impotent until it sees that our enemy is the devil," Graham said.

"Our problem in America is a spiritual problem," Graham asserted. "The devil himself is operating in our country with a supernatural power beyond human ability to cope with. That is why our problems seem insoluble."

The 53-year-old evangelist called on his fellow Baptists to light a candle that "will banish moral and spiritual blight in America... and roll back racism and social injustice."

An overwhelming majority of the delegates rejected a proposal to censor a set of books that give a liberal interpretation of the Bible.

The vote split the meeting 4-to-1 against approval of a motion to withdraw from further sale the 12-volume Broadman Bible Commentary and have it rewritten.

Rev. Gwin W. Turner of Mar Vista, Calif., argued that the commentary claims "there are errors in the Bible" and this "is out of harmony" with the beliefs of the 11.8 million Southern Baptists.

Dr. Herschel H. Hobbs of Oklahoma City, a former president, was the only speaker against Turner's motion, and he suggested its approval "can only lead to disruption of our fellowship."

"No man alive today could write a commentary on the Bible with which all Southern Baptists would agree entirely," Hobbs said.

The delegates also selected the first layman since 1959 to head the denomination. He is Owen Cooper, 61, of Yazoo City, Miss., president of the Mississippi Chemical Corp., who defeated five other candidates, including the first woman ever nominated Mrs. Marie Mathis, director of the student union at Baylor University.

Cooper succeeds Rev. Carl Bates, who in a speech made the plea that Southern Baptists stop fighting one another and turn their efforts to trying to save "the vast majority of the world's peoples who have no hope of salvation."

He declared that "there may be time tomorrow to hammer away at one another" but insisted today "we must stand as we have never stood before in concern for a lost world."

Witnesses Arena meet

Jehovah's Witnesses have selected Long Beach as one of the 59 convention sites in the United States for their 1972 series of worldwide meetings.

Eugene R. Brandt, convention manager of Long Beach, said this year's assembly is scheduled for the Long Beach Sports Arena for July 20-23, and he expects 17,000 delegates for the four-day event from the greater Long Beach area. Other conventions are scheduled for the Forum in Inglewood and the Los Angeles Sports Arena, on the same dates.

James Boyd, city supervisor in Long Beach, said the four-day convention will stress the importance of spirituality in an age of materialism.

"The world is under great stress," he said. "Daily the news media reports on revolution, anarchy, pollution, war, crime, disease and death."

Deadline

Material cannot be considered for publication in the Saturday religion section unless we have it by noon on Thursday.

FROM THE PULPIT
Dr. Frank Collins
The Word of God is too sacred a thing, and preaching too solemn a work, to be toyed and played with, as is the usage of some, who make a sermon but matter of wit and fine oratory. Such content and delivery may challenge the intellect but do nothing for the soul. The Scriptures remind us, "It pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." When Paul gave his instruction to Timothy, he said, "Preach the Word." If we mean to do good, we must come unto men's hearts, not in word only, but with power. God's Word is a living, vital force.
The pulpit ministry of our church is centered upon the proclaiming of God's book, the Bible. Here in is Christ exalted and souls prepared for eternity. You would receive a blessing from attending our services.

WHAT DOES IT TAKE TO LOVE YOUR ENEMY?

Something more than human love. It takes a more spiritual look at yourself and the other fellow. An understanding that you both have the same Father-Mother, God.

It takes realizing that no man is your enemy. Your real enemy is evil — hate, envy, irritation, revenge. When these are overcome you find you have no enemy. Children enjoy the relevance of spiritually-based thinking like this. They're always welcome at our Sunday School.

B52 buildup in Asia stripping some U.S. bases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost half of the Air Force's B52s are now assigned to Southeast Asia, U.S. military officers said Friday, virtually stripping the runways of many bases in the United States of the bombers which are supposed to deter Soviet attack.

The U.S. has approximately 400 B52s, the first plane designed specifically to carry nuclear weapons. About 120 of those were converted at the beginning of the Vietnam war so each could hold 108 bombs weighing a total of 60,000 pounds.

Those 120 planes have all been sent to Guam and Thailand from where they daily bomb Indochina from such high altitudes that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong do not know they are a target until the bombs actually explode.

BUT IN the last few months, the Air Force has begun sending B52 models that have not been converted and can carry only 27 conventional bombs each or about 15,000 pounds—the same as the maximum load of a small A7 attack plane.

Military officers said Friday about 200 of the bombers were now in Guam and Thailand compared with only 50 there last February before the buildup began. They said they did not expect any more large numbers of B52s to be sent to the Western Pacific.

Even at the height of the 1965-68 air war, the U.S. had fewer than 130 B52s bombing Indochina.

The big planes were sent to Southeast Asia from 14 bases scattered around the country. Officers indicated planes have been taken from each base so that no single base would be devoid of B52s.

THE BASES are: Beale, Calif.; Blytheville, Ark.; Carswell, Tex.; Dyess, Tex.; Ellsworth, S.D.; Fairchild, Wash.; Griffiss, N.Y.; Loring, Mass.; March, Calif.; Mather, Calif.; McCoy, Fla.; Robins, Ga.; Seymour-Johnson, N.C.; and Westover, Mass.

Each base would acknowledge locally that it had sent B52s to Southeast Asia but there was no statement from the Pentagon.

The Strategic Air Command has generally tried to keep 40 per cent of its aircraft on alert at all times. But due to crew shortages resulting from Indochina operations since 1965, it has frequently been unable to keep that high an alert status.

In addition to the 400 B52 bombers, the Strategic Air Command also has about 70 FB111 bombers, a modification of the TFX. All of them remain in the U.S.

was the top man in the Central Highlands region at the time of his death.

quarters said NBC newsmen Tom Petit suffered a cut finger.

McGovern's office in Washington said later the appearance in Oklahoma City at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner had been canceled and the candidate would return to Washington.

In New York, an FAA spokesman said the anonymous telephone threat was made to New York City police at 4:02 p.m.

"The caller did not specify what plane, he just said the plane with McGovern on it was going to blow up," the FAA spokesman said.

McGovern's chartered United 737 took off from La Guardia at 4:06. Meanwhile, police were finding out what plane the presidential aspirant was using.

At 4:16, police and the FAA, through the airline's facilities, notified the pilot.

Bow-arrow attack charged L.B. teen

A West Long Beach teen-ager was jailed Friday night on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder after he fired an arrow at a policeman.

Police said Sidney A. Qualles, 19, of 2735 San Francisco Ave., was tackled by Officer G. H. Miller as he stalked Miller's partner, Officer G. G. Boyer, with a bow and arrow at 8:30 p.m.

Miller and Boyer had been called to the San Francisco Avenue address after a neighbor told police that Qualles had threatened him with a hunting knife.

Boyer said he went to the door of the home, saw Qualles with the bow and arrow, and told several neighbors to scatter. As Boyer ran for cover himself, an arrow sailed over his head and hit a police car, officers said.

Miller brought the suspect down with the flying tackle as Qualles was preparing to fire again, police said.

Cop shoots two as jets roar above

READING, Pa. — An off-duty policeman shot and wounded two fellow officers and then killed himself Friday as the three were working as guards at the Reading Air Show, city police reported.

Dead is Charles W. Kurtz of Reading, police said.

Patrolman Olin J. Wait, 24, was listed in poor condition at Reading Hospital and Officer Russell S. Huyett Jr. suffered a superficial wound.

Police said that Kurtz first shot Wait and then turned the gun on Huyett when he tried to intercede. The motive was not known at once.

The U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds were performing above a crowded pavilion at the Spatz Airfield north of here when the shooting occurred, officers said.

Police said the precision air team was flying through the final segment of its performance at the air show and was diving towards the area when the shots were fired. With the sounds of the jets, only a few persons among the thousands in attendance heard the gunshots.

The officers involved were off duty at the time of the shooting but were in uniform while acting as guards for the air show, police said.

thus gained, the Southern and border state Democratic leaders and moderates in other states could put together a coalition strong enough to convince uncommitted delegates to remain that way through early balloting at the Democratic convention in Miami next month.

But Muskie seemed to have other ideas. He laid out what might be called a blueprint for winning the nomination for McGovern to follow. Muskie urged McGovern to consult those party elements resisting his candidacy to see their advice and counsel. And he urged McGovern to "re-examine and refine his own position" on critical issues to broaden areas of agreement and narrow differences.

"The broadest agreement consistent with his own principles and convictions is the only means of victory in November," said Muskie.

Muskie said he himself questions McGovern's positions on welfare, taxes and defense. He said McGovern had never provided enough specifics by which he could judge them.

"He must broaden his appeal and refine his positions," said Muskie.

In Springfield, Ill., Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III told about 2,000 delegates to the Illinois Democratic state convention that Muskie has given the party "a choice" of national leaders.

In recent decisions, federal judges have differed over the legality of electronic surveillance.

Last week U.S. District Court Judge Joseph S. Lord 3rd of Philadelphia said wiretapping used in a gambling case violated the constitutional protection against unreasonable search.

Nixon tags successor to Gray

WASHINGTON — President Nixon Friday announced he will nominate Associate Deputy Atty. Gen. Harlington Wood Jr. to head the Justice Department's civil division to replace L. Patrick Gray III, who resigned to become acting director of the FBI.

Besides Wood, of Springfield, Ill., Nixon also chose two other new assistant attorneys general to head key divisions in the Justice Department.

—Thomas E. Kauper, a professor at the University of Michigan Law School, will be named to head the antitrust division, replacing Richard W. McLaren, who resigned to become a federal judge for the Northern District of Illinois.

—A. William Olson Jr., of Pasadena Calif., will be named to head the internal security division, replacing Robert C. Mardian, who resigned to take a post at the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Wood, 52, is a lawyer who has served on the Illinois Crime Investigation Commission and joined the Justice Department in 1969. He has been acting assistant attorney general heading the civil division since Gray was named by Nixon to the FBI post.

Kauper, 36, a native of Brooklyn, has been teaching law at the University of Michigan since 1964. He also was a deputy assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's Office of Legal Counsel from 1969 to 1971.

Olson, 49, a native of Portland, Ore., previously practiced law in Pasadena. He has been a deputy assistant attorney general in the internal security division since 1971. In April, he was named acting assistant attorney general to replace Mardian.

Man crossing street struck, killed by car

An 82-year-old Long Beach man was fatally injured Friday when he was struck by an auto in the crosswalk at Ocean Boulevard and Esperanza Avenue.

The victim, Charles J. Goldman, of 1227 E. Ocean Blvd., died in St. Mary's Hospital shortly after the 6:29 p.m. accident.

Drug traffic seen growing

NEW YORK — U.S. Atty. Whitney North Seymour Jr., whose bailiwick includes half the nation's narcotics addicts and the biggest port of entry for illicit drugs, told a congressional subcommittee Friday that law enforcers have failed to put a dent in the trafficking of narcotics and the problem is "growing worse."

"The biggest interruption in the heroin flow into the United States was the shipping strike, not a result of what any of us did," said Seymour.

The present law enforcement machinery aimed against drug traffic, he said at another point, "is little better than trying to hunt an elephant with a cork gun."

SEYMOUR appeared at the first of three nationwide hearings planned by the foreign operations subcommittee of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs. A second session is planned in Chicago next month and another, on the West Coast at a site not yet named.

Asked for his recommendations on how to curb drug abuse, Seymour said "the single most important step" that can be taken to stop the spread of narcotics is preventive education.

"It is absolutely essential to persuade the huge body of potential addicts that addiction is dangerous and undesirable. This cannot be done once drug abuse begins. It must be done beforehand," he said.

Seymour also urged strict international control of opium growth and shipment, and technological research to produce tracer elements that can be sprayed on crops to aid in spotting concealed heroin shipments.

Police Inspector Daniel J. Courtenay, the top narcotics enforcement official in the New York police department, said there were 300,000 drug addicts in the city, compared with 60,000 a few years ago.

He said that despite increasing arrests and seizures, there has been "no curtailment of drug traffic in the United States."

HE SAID each New York addict spends an estimated $40 a day to maintain his habit, making illicit drugs a $12 million-a-day business in the city.

Nelson G. Gross, senior adviser to the U.S. secretary of state and coordinator of international anti-narcotics matters, said most heroin in the United States comes from the Middle East.

In Southeast Asia, said Gross, heroin production is now centered in Burma, rather than Thailand, Laos or South Vietnam.

The foreign operation subcommittee is chaired by Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y.

L.B. slaying suspect back from Colorado

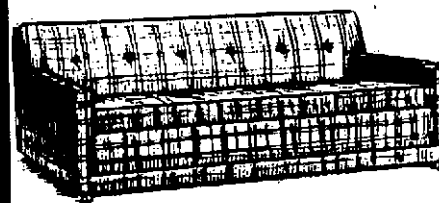

A Long Beach man was brought back from Cortez, Colo., in police custody Friday and jailed on suspicion of slaying a 76-year-old man.

William Smith, 28, had been arrested in the Colorado town after Smith applied for a job, and a background check showed that he was wanted in connection with the Long Beach murder last November.

Explaining of research held vital to funding

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

The research scientist must come out of his ivory tower and explain his work to the public if he expects financial backing for basic medical research, the president of the California Heart Association said in Long Beach.

The association official, Dr. Elliot Rapaport of San Francisco, who also is a former chairman of the American Heart Association's research committee, told the 22nd annual meeting of the Long Beach Heart Association that the "greatest breakthroughs" in medicine are most likely to stem from scientific investigations "with no obvious applicability at the time they are funded."

It is difficult for the layman to give money which is hard to come by to support research into a problem that has no immediate application, he said.

YET THERE ARE "myriad" instances in science in which major advances have been achieved from projects that were originally not understood by the public, he added.

Even though more government funds are being assigned to heart research, there is a greater need than ever for research support from voluntary health agencies such as the heart association, Rapaport noted.

For one thing, he said, almost all the increases in federal research funds are slated for "targeted areas" — for specialized centers of research, and for specific purposes, many of them in the field of applied science.

Federal research grants also carry with them "stringent guidelines," making for a lack of flexibility in how the money is used, he continued.

On the other hand, heart association grants often go to support the unproven, unknown investigator, and there are fewer strings attached to research funds.

And these are the grants that may lead to the successful breakthroughs, Rapaport observed.

He called for "expanded involvement" of the general public in heart association affairs, saying more of the young and the underprivileged must be brought into the organization "at board and governing levels."

Otherwise, he warned, when the heart association approaches the ghetto areas with new programs, they may be looked upon suspiciously as representing the Establishment only.

Such programs, without the support of participants, will probably be unsuccessful, he said.

In an awards ceremony, Dr. George M. H. Chun of Memorial Hospital Medical Center's division of clinical physiology won the Frederick Kellogg Award for Outstanding Research.

Chun's research centered on use of ultrasound to measure blood flow to the brain as a means of finding certain persons vulnerable to a stroke. Such patients, those with obstructed neck arteries, can sometimes be operated upon to remove the threat of stroke.

The American Heart Association's distinguished service award was presented to Dr. Myrvin H. Ellestad, also of Memorial Hospital Medical Center, for his work in administering treadmill stress tests as a diagnostic and evaluation technique in heart disease. More than 7,000 persons have undergone such tests under Ellestad's supervision.

Miss Beatrice Hughes and Dr. Edgar R. Palarea were honored as the first members of the $1,000 Heart Club — persons who have either raised or donated $1,000 or more to the heart association.

Palarea and Carl Dahlin were awarded plaques. Dahlin is the outgoing board chairman and Palarea is the outgoing association president.

PLAQUES OR medallions also were awarded to Dr. Saul P. Savitz, Dr. Ralph Simonian and Lyman Lough for services to the board of directors.

Special certificates were awarded to Max Endicott, Fire Capt. Doug Sandeman, Leo Neal, Mrs. Donald Coscarelli, Mrs. Raymond Kelso Jr., Mrs. Alexander Beckett, Mrs. Kenneth Kincaid, Doug Ritchie, Mrs. William Fogarty Jr., Mrs. Marilyn Hale, Mrs. Robert Yancy, Mrs. Leone Dell, Mrs. Ethel Grandfield, Mrs. Arline Patten, Mrs. Bernice Bell King, Mrs. Florence Davies, Mrs. Maxine Ogletree, Mrs. Joyce Christensen, Bert Resnik and Ben Zinser.

Organizations honored for service contributions to the heart association included the Long Beach Gas Department, Pacific Southwest Airlines and the Women's Auxiliary of Long Beach Medical Association.

DR. WILLIAM H. ALLEN was installed as association president. He is an associate fellow of the American College of Cardiology, a member of the American College of Physicians, a fellow of the American Heart Association and holds a board certification in cardiovascular disease.

Adm. Ned Sprow is the new chairman of the board. Other new officers are Dr. Dominic DeCristofaro, president-elect; Mrs. Agnes Kuffel, vice president; Mrs. Lillian Crawford, secretary; and Capt. Jack Young, treasurer.

Sailing rules in the channel

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Because of increased traffic in the entrance channel to Alamitos Bay, the Long Beach Marine Department is asking all boats to keep to the right of the channel when leaving or entering.

The department is hoping to solve the congestion problem through voluntary cooperation of local skippers, according to Eric Lucas, director of the Marine Department.

No ordinance to control traffic in the channel has been proposed, and none is intended at this time, Lucas said Friday.

TEN ADDITIONAL speed buoys have been placed down the centerline of the entrance channel to guide skippers, Lucas said.

Power boats should keep to the west of this centerline leaving the bay, and to the east of the line entering the bay, he said.

Sailboats are asked to power in and out of the channel, if this is possible, and also to observe the centerline, Lucas said.

When under sail alone, skippers are urged to exercise courtesy to other skippers and not place them in a position where drastic maneuvering is necessary to avoid collisions, Lucas said.

Although sailboats have right of way over boats under power in most circumstances, Lucas said, the rules of the road require all boat operators to exercise prudence.

Lucas said the centerline has been established because the department has received complaints from both sail and power boat operators.

"If skippers will follow the rules of the road and be courteous to one another, we will not need an ordinance," he said.

COMMODORES of all local yacht clubs and various boat owners groups have been advised of the problem, and have promised to instruct their members to cooperate in the program, Lucas said.

Similar information will be distributed to owners of boats in Long Beach Marina along with the next billing, he said.

SENIORS' FARE CUTS FAVORED

Further reduction in the fares for senior citizens riding on Long Beach buses is expected to be recommended by the Bureau of Franchises at its meeting Monday at 9:30 a.m. in the City Council chambers.

Bus fares are set by the board of directors of the Long Beach Public Transportation Co., so the Bureau of Franchises recommendation would be advisory only.

At present, senior citizens may ride on city buses during specific hours for a fare of 20 cents. The regular fare is 30 cents, or four tokens for $1.

Availability of additional funds from the sales tax on gasoline is one of the factors behind the bureau's attempt to lower rates for the elderly, according to Louis Posner, chief engineer-secretary of the bureau.

JAMES DEWITT, president of the Protective Council of California Senior Citizens, Inc., sent a letter to the city opposing the use of gasoline tax funds for the Southern California Rapid Transit District, and urging that such funds go to reduce fares for the elderly.

Councilmen referred the letter to the bureau, and it will be considered at Monday's meeting.

'First' LBSU graduates

180 get Fine Arts degrees

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

To the chiming tune of Pomp and Circumstance, the first "university" graduates of Long Beach State marched in cap-and-gown formality to personalized commencement ceremonies on the campus Friday.

In the first of six separate graduation exercises scheduled over the weekend, about 180 candidates from the university's Fine Arts programs, and 55 education candidates, received their degrees in the new college union's South Plaza.

IN EARLY afternoon ceremonies, a crowd of 250 persons watched as the conferring of degrees was preceded by a display of the Fine Arts talents—poetry readings and modern dance and choral performances.

At the later School of Education commencement, a smaller crowd witnessed the formal pronouncement of graduation of the new teachers by LBSU President Stephen Horn and applauded the remarks of Dr. Alonzo Crim, Compton Unified School District superintendent.

Crim told the prospective teachers to first concern themselves with inspiring their students to "make life an exciting adventure."

"Man's greatest fear is not of dying, but of feeling unfit to live," the scarlet-robed Crim said. "You should be able to exemplify to your students . . . You cause the sun to rise within you each day, that you have carved out goals for yourselves that inspire you to enthusiastic action."

A prime example of why this approach is a much needed one exists in the recently-troubled district he heads, added Crim. There, a teacher who gave knowledgeable lectures would be deficient—his first need would be to help his students understand the benefits of education on their own level.

Crim also said this approach has made the public schools of America succeed "beyond the wildest dreams of our founding fathers."

"We have said the purpose of our schools is to develop independent thinkers: our students today infuriate adults because they are doing exactly that—they disagree with adults on ecology, on foreign policy, on the draft, on the structure of education and on the goals of society," he said.

Crim's remarks in the second ceremony followed the Fine Arts program which included a dramatic reading of a section of "Johnny Got His Gun," the anti-war novel by Dalton Trumbo.

OTHER scheduled commencement exercises at the mid-campus college union include three ceremonies today: Applied Arts and Sciences at 1:30 p.m.; Engineering at 3:30 p.m.; and Business Administration at 5:30 p.m.

The largest of the ceremonies, for graduates of the School of Letters and Science, will be staged at 3 p.m. Sunday at the college union. Captain Jacques-Yves Cousteau will deliver the commencement address there.

Geriatric unit to open Sunday

Palmcrest North Convalescent Hospital and Palmcrest House, one of the largest geriatric centers in the Southland, will open its doors Sunday at 2 p.m.

The facility, at 3501 Cedar Ave., will house 362 elderly persons. It was built on a three-acre site at a cost of $2.5 million.

Registering for city tennis classes to begin

Registration for the first of two 10-lesson tennis classes for adults, sponsored by the Long Beach Recreation Department, will open Monday.

Classes will be held during both day and evening hours. The fee is $6. The first session starts June 26, and the second begins July 31.

Daytime classes will be held at El Dorado Park, B. J. King, Somerset, Wilson and Millikan. Evening classes will be given at B. J. King, El Dorado and Houghton.

With the exception of the Millikan High classes, the 10-lesson course will be covered in a five-week period. The Millikan classes will be held Saturday morning and will run for 10 weeks.

Registration for the first session should be completed between Monday and June 21. For the second session, registration will be held from July 10 to 19.

POSTMAN'S HOLIDAY

Larry Armet, 55, 1828B Glenoaks Ave., Anaheim, will be mailing letters from now on instead of delivering them. He recently retired after 30 years service as a mail carrier, 18 of them in Long Beach. Residents on his route in the Carson-Studebaker area of Lakewood held a neighborhood party to honor their old friend who has brought them mail since 1957. Part of Armet's retirement plans include visits to some of the 356 "stops" he made daily for the past 15 years.

Dry year held proof Water Project is vital

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

"This is the first serious dry year California has experienced since the State Water Project went into operation in 1962 and it proves that the project is vital to the economy and welfare of the people."

This was the essence of a speech made Friday at the Orange County water and environmental luncheon, sponsored by the California Water Resources Association. It was held at the Disneyland Hotel, Anaheim.

THE SPEAKER was William R. Gianelli, director of the State Department of Water Resources.

He began his speech by urging his listeners to "get the word about our good work out to the people so they will know how to answer the many questions raised about water."

Gianelli said the average person pays no attention to water unless "it suddenly fails to come out of the faucet."

"We fail the people when we fail to inform them," he added. "We also fail them when we treat water as the main topic of a secret society and ourselves as the high priests."

He emphasized that the cornerstone of California's economy is agriculture and criticized those who proposed to divert the state's water from the farmers to the cities.

"The cost of importing food is much higher than the cost of importing water to grow our own food," he said.

"Drying up agriculture in this state to test the theories of those who have no responsibility for either food or water supplies makes absolutely no sense and is tantamount to ruinous economic anarchy."

Commenting briefly on the recent four-day strike of water department employees, Gianelli called the strike a "test case for the California State Employees Association to see if its members could make a strike effective."

HE SAID they chose his department because it was small, with only 500 employees, and because water is so vital to the state that an effective strike would have been felt by all the people.

He called the strike a failure, summing up:

"In short, they struck for what they already had and they lost four days' wages in doing so."

CLUB NOTES

The Long Beach African Violet Society will meet Thursday at 1309 East Third St. with a culture class by Clarence Wilson at 10 a.m. A social hour at 11 will be followed by a lecture.

Visitors are welcome.

The Anaheim Convention Center will be the site of the 18th Annual Southland Home and Garden Show from July 14 through the 23rd.

The flower show, replete with arrays of exotic plants and crystal fountains, will be a major feature. A modular house will be constructed in the exhibition hall. The latest trends in furnishings and decoration will be spotlighted, and much space will be devoted to art displays.

The Southern California Dahlia Society will meet in the Community Room of the Glendale Savings and Loan building in the Los Altos shopping center, 5535 Stearns St. June 17 at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be preceded by a pot luck dinner at 6:30. Charles Dunn promises a lively program at the close of the meeting.

The society will hold its annual Dahlia Show July 29 and 30 at Sims Park Auditorium, 16814 South Clark Ave., Bellflower. The show will be open from 2 to 10 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday. Good quality blossoms will be given away at the end of the show.

Admission is gratis.

How to enjoy roses longer

By PAUL R. KRONE
Prof. Emeritus, MSU

For lasting satisfaction, when you receive a vase of roses:

—Add water immediately and refill the vase daily. Roses are heavy drinkers.

—If the florist uses a "porous foam" material in the vase to hold the roses in place, keep the foam covered with water. If the "foam" extends above the top of the container, keep the water as high in the vase as possible. The ends of the stems should be below the water.

—Your florist may have added a "floral preservative" to the water. If not, you can get a small package from him. It will provide additional days of vase-life.

Premature wilting is not a sign that the rose is old. It sometimes occurs if the bud has been cut before sufficiently mature—or if a cut has been made through the bark, or the bark has been scraped. If this injured section is above the water level, the stem cannot take up water. If this has happened, cut off the stem above the damaged place and insert the rose in deep warm water (about 100 degrees F.). When the rose revives, place it in the arrangement.

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Enclosed is a branch from our walnut tree. Last week we noticed blister-like spots on many of the leaves. Is there anything you can suggest to remedy this? Will this condition cause worms in the walnuts? Is the best time to pick walnuts when they are still green or should we wait until they turn dark and fall? Do they have to be dried? I have tried putting them in the oven, but it is so much work. Any suggestions? Mrs. N. Weber, Bellflower.

Bacterial blight can cause irregular spots on leaves and fruit of walnuts. Blight on the young shoots can cause fruit-set failure. The old-time remedy is two applications of copper sulphate spray (bordeaux spray). They first application should be made just before the blooming of the panicle flowers, and second one after they are through blooming. No, the bacterial blight does not cause worms in the walnut fruit. Walnut worm is caused by the codling moth. The worm bores through the husk and shell to the fruit. The walnut husk fly (maggot, too, is a destructive pest problem. For control, spray when moss of the catkins have dropped. Spray again two or three weeks later.

AZALEAS . . . They Grow Well if Set Out Properly

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Azaleas grow well if the plants are set out in a medium similar to what they have become accustomed to at the nursery.

Most azaleas are grown in peat moss. Many are grown in fine texture sphagnum peat moss, while some of the wholesale azalea growers plant them in coarse type of peat.

The main trouble with most azaleas is that they're loosely planted. There are two tests for loose planting. Grasp the plant trunk and try to lift up the plant. The plant lifts easily if loosely planted. The other test is to poke fingers into planting medium from trunk on outward. The test area is between the outer side of the root ball and the inside edge of the hole dug for planting. It must be poked down firmly. More pre-moistened peat moss is then added to ground level.

An azalea planter mix containing equal parts of sphagnum peat moss and fine ground bark is a safer material to use than many. The fine-ground bark quickly absorbs the moisture and the peat moss slowly becomes saturated. Gardeners who forget to keep the planting medium moist around azaleas, are less likely to have to dig up critically dry plants and soak them before replanting. Azaleas may be pruned back to any shape or size desired. The gardener simply cuts where he wants. A cluster of new branches soon grows out from the cut. No drastic pruning should be done after mid-July. They need to be fed an acid-type fertilizer at monthly intervals.

The shade garden from summer into fall needn't lack color. Bedding and semipiflorous type of begonias, shrubby upright fuchsias and coleus provide lots of color. Richly colored blossoms of fuchsias can be harvested for indoor display in a shallow, flat container such as one would use for short-stem camellia blooms. The longer begonia branches can be snapped off three or four inches long and used in small containers. Even the flower buds, showing color, open indoors. Coleus add their share of color by their showy leafage. Impatiens (pronounced im-pay-tee-ens) also add colorful begonia-like flowers.

Perennials are smaller-growing plants that annually bloom during their specific season. Some bloom several times, others one full period, while several flower off and on the year round.

Gerbera-Transvaal daisy is most prolific if grown in a sunny area, given deep drinks of water only when really thirsty, and fertilized at monthly intervals, excepting October through December. These generous-blooming plants furnish daisy-like single-and-double-form flowers in a wide range of colors, including various shades of red, orange, pink, yellow as well as white or nearly white, almost the year round. The crowns from where the blossoms and leaves emanate should never be covered by soil. If they are the plants bloom poorly or not at all.

Liriope muscari, a lesser known perennial, is even harder than gerbera because it tolerates cold down to about five below zero. Commonly known as Lily turf, it provides individual spikes, having miniature, grape-like clusters of pinkish-lavender blossoms during the summer. An excellent perennial, whether for shade or sun in milder areas, it is also a good container specimen for the patio.

Day lilies furnish desirable blossoms during the summer and fall, depending upon the varieties chosen. There are evergreen kinds, as well as deciduous ones that tolerate cold winter weather. Fortunately, the blossoms of yellows, bronze to nearly red, don't all open out at once. Clusters of buds continue to burgeon forth every other day or two.

Lawns need not be a problem if the gardener takes care of them. Weekly mowings of the lawn, plus four-inch deep waterings, and feedings at least every three months keep the lawn growing in good condition. Weeds are the bothersome problem.

JOB TO DO NOW

SHRUBS, TREES, GROUNDCOVERS, vines, fruits, vegetables, and lawns may be planted this month, the sooner planted the better. Be sure the plant holes have been filled with water which has soaked into the soil before planting. Lawn soil should be well soaked, also, for groundcovers before planting.

SOW aster, ageratum, alyssum, amaranthus, arctotis, candytuft, celosia, centaurea, dimorphotheca, gypsophila, mignonette, nasturtium, painted daisy, phlox, portulaca, scabiosa, sunflower, tithonia, gomphrena gloriosa daisy, nicotiana, petunia, salvia, statice.

SET OUT PLANTS . . . of astere, ageratum, amaranthus, begonia, candytuft, celosia, carnation, coleus, coral bell, dwarf dahlia, dusty miller, gomphrena, gloriosa daisy, sweet william, shasta daisy, torenia, vinca rosea, verbena, marigold, zinnia.

SOW VEGETABLES: bean, beet, cabbage, carrot, cauliflower, celery, corn, cucumber, kale, parsley, parsnip, pepper, pumpkin, summer squash, radish, swiss chard, tomato.

SET OUT VEGETABLES . . . of tomato, pepper, egg plant, swiss chard, parsley, cabbage, chive, tomato.

Flea beetles a problem?

This is for you.

If you have brown spots in your lawn, and the blades of grass look as though they've been shot full of holes, chances are flea beetles are at work.

A simple way to control them is with Spectracide®. Mow the lawn, and water well before treatment. Apply when dry and do not water again until necessary. Repeat application may be necessary.

Spectracide not only controls flea beetles but most other insects that bug your lawn and garden. Whether they're eating your shrubs, flowers, fruits, vegetables or lawn.

So simplify lawn and garden insect control—get Spectracide. It contains Diazinon® insecticide. Available in granular, liquid or pressurized spray forms at your nursery or garden supply center.

THE DAILY INVESTOR

Closed-ends keep pace

By CHARLES J. ELIA

Q. Since the market turnaround last Thanksgiving I've been observing the comparative performance of no-load mutual funds and closed-end investment companies. The evidence of my logarithmic charting of the two kinds of companies suggests that prices of closed-ends have not been keeping pace with portfolio values as they naturally do in mutual funds.

In other words, the spread between market price and net asset value constitutes a progressively deepening discount for most closed-end funds from the equivalent value of open-end mutuals. Can you explain why this happens? Does it imply that closed-ends become more attractive investments than mutual funds as the discounts widen?

A. No generalization of that kind can be made about closed-end funds selling at a discount. No one can really explain the fundamental reason for a closed-end to sell at a discount one month and at a premium a year later, or for some closed-ends to nearly always sell at premiums while others seldom sell at anything but a discount.

Obviously, if you could buy a closed-end at a discount from net asset value and be sure it would go to a premium as its NAV rose in general market upswing, you'd get a double play — one from rising values of the portfolio and the other from the discount-premium swing.

That can happen, of course, but it is even less predictable than the course of a depressed stock which is bought by an investor hoping for both a rise in per-share price and an upward appraisal of its price-to-earnings ratio.

In other words, you've discovered no magic formula for the closed-ends, any more than a magic formula can be found for any other stock dependent on the hope, greed or fear of investors.

Expected return on closed ends plays an important role. So does net asset value per share. But the basic force through which these expectations work with closed-ends is the old supply-demand equation.

Closed-end shares trade just like any other corporate stock and the market balance of buying-selling forces sets the price. This often will differ from the portfolio asset values. Mutual fund shares, on the other hand, live or die on the basis of their net asset values on any given day.

Channel 7 'Sports Action' focus on Billie Jean King

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Billie Jean King, who has told me she would like to become a TV sportscaster after she winds up her professional tennis career, has been getting a good bit of exposure on the tube via talk shows the past year or two.

And this afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, the gal who rose from the public courts of Long Beach to the top of women's tennis, will be the subject for "Sports Action Pro-File" on Channel 7.

Mrs. King will be shown on tour: in a match and rematch with young Chris Evert in Florida and Dallas, and on a promotional campaign in Chicago.

Earlier today, at 11:30 a.m., black tennis star Arthur Ashe will be a guest on Channel 4's "Comment!"

FROM THE MAILBAG:
"... After reading your first article, stating that TV offers something for everyone, etc., I came to the conclusion that you must be an optimist, or a dreamer, or perhaps you want a bit of controversy!

"Believe me, there are many of us who would argue the point, in spite of the fact that, as you said, we do continue to watch! It's the darned re-runs of re-runs which I find unpleasant; matter of fact, I'm in the process of writing the FCC, via our congressman, to voice my disgust!

"As for watching sports, deliver me!! I happened to be one of those who always hid behind the gym locker during physical ed! Of course, during the day, there are all those "soap operas," but I outgrew those at about the time that someone discovered a better way to fold diapers, by making four corners, rather than three!

"I'm trying very hard to think up something else argumentative, but so far, no luck! Actually, as long as 'Dennis the Menace,' 'Dragnet,' 'Andy Griffith' and a few more of the 'oldies' are shown, why should I complain?

"Anyway, sir, I wish you good luck, and I will miss Mr. Eres, so all I can say is: 'Write on!'"

Catherine E. Jackson
Belflower

(All I can say is: "Watch on!")

"... I LIKE your attitude of tolerance for the sometime "idiot" tube. I, too, employ the selective method, rather than let the set remain on all day, as no doubt many do.

"Also, I am fortunate to have remote control, so that distasteful advertising can be avoided..."

Henry M. Gaines
San Pedro

"I'M SO GLAD you do like TV — so do I, tho of course not everything (no one does). But most things..."

Mrs. Ethel Abbott
Long Beach

"I RARELY READ the TV news and don't watch the shows much except the newscasts of evening... I have watched the Johnny Carson show, he gives the impression of a concetted ass. Cavett is a regular type American; as to this piece about Johnny going strong and Cavett failing, reminds me of Soupy Sales a few years ago. He had his own show here in Calif. According to the way I read, the ratings go by the mail in favor of the show and Soupy was going strong until they discovered he was sending the letters of praise himself. Could be what Johnny is doing.

"Just thought I might shake you up with some ideas but for heaven's sake don't make me no enemies in disclosing my name, I do enough of that myself..."

(I wouldn't think of it.)

"CONGRATULATIONS on the new assignment. You'll like radio and TV. But if you say 'All in the Family' is great, I'll shoot V — Long Beach (Lay that pistol down, babe.)

Howard Coleman tells of the dignitary from Israel who was making a goodwill tour of the U.S., accompanied by his wife.

During their itinerary they visited an old friend who happened to be a Chevrolet dealer. So overjoyed at their reunion, the dealer offered his old friend a '71 Impala for a present, only to have his generous offer refused because of political complications. The automobile man persisted by telling him he'd sell him the new Chev. for 50 cents and this seemed agreeable. When the visitor proffered a one dollar bill (the smallest he had), his wife whispered to him, "Able, don't take the change, take another Impala!"

Folks, I can't quite match that deal, but at Harbor Chevrolet, 3770 Cherry, we'll come close.

Americans take Curtis Cup lead

WESTERN GAIRES, Scotland (AP) — The United States, after trailing 1-2 in the morning foursomes, rallied back in the singles Friday to lead Britain 5-3 with one match halved at the end of the first day of the Curtis Cup women's golf competition.

Today's pairings

Laura Baugh, Long Beach, and Mrs. Martha Wilkinson, Rancho Bernardo, Calif., vs. Mickey Walker and Mary McKeon, Santa Monica, Ala. and Hollis Stacy, Savannah, Ga. vs. Mrs. Diane Pearson, Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., and Barbara McIntire, Colorado Springs, vs. Mary Everard and Beverly Huke, Birmingham, Ala.

Martha Wilkinson Kirouac of Rancho Bernardo, Calif., the 1970 American Women's champion, played a big part in the American success. She was the only U.S. player to win two matches.

She partnered the reigning U.S. champion, Laura Baugh of Long Beach, to a 2-1 victory over Mary Everard and Beverly Huke in the morning.

In the afternoon Mrs. Kirouac went out again in pouring rain to beat Miss Everard, 4-3, in the singles.

Other American singles winners over the 6,331-yard par 38-37-75 sea side course were Jane Booth of Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., Barbara McIntire of Colorado Springs, Colo. and Beth Barry of Mobile, Ala.

Miss Baugh, 17-year-old glamor girl of American golf, halved a tense match with Michelle Walker, the British champion.

Miss Walker was one up at the turn and went two-up with a birdie three at the 10th. Miss Baugh won the 12th and 15th, both with pars.

In the morning Mrs. Kirouac and Miss Baugh sent the American team off to a good start by winning the first foursomes, but Britain won the next two.

Hunter vs. Brundage

Fighting inmate faces Games ban

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, indicated Friday that it is doubtful that jailed American boxer Bobby Lee Hunter will be able to compete in the Summer Olympic Games.

Brundage said Games' officials and the International Amateur Boxing Assn. are checking Hunter's eligibility in view of the sentence he is now serving for manslaughter in a correctional institution at Manning, S.C.

Brundage said he thought it was doubtful Hunter could compete in view of the basic condition that an athlete must have lived in the spirit of the Olympic Rules, the Games and the Olympic ideal.

Hunter was allowed to compete in the Pan American Games, operated under much the same rules, and won a bronze medal in the flyweight division.

EVEN BEFORE HUNTER competed in the Pan American Games the U.S. Olympic Committee was squeamish about the idea.

"It puts us in an uncomfortable position," said Clifford Buck, president of the U.S. group. "We were worried about our international image."

Willi Daume, president of the Munich Organizing Committee, said Hunter could hardly be considered an example for youth.

In order to make the U.S. Olympic team, Hunter would have to qualify in the trials to be held July 19-22 at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, Tex.

Nebraska's Rodgers jailed, 'career ruined'

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska football star Johnny Rodgers was sentenced to 30 days in jail Friday on a charge of driving a car with a suspended operator's license. Probation was denied.

Rodgers also was ordered not to drive a motor vehicle for one year, and was fined $5 in a companion charge of running a red light.

The charges, to which Rodgers pleaded guilty May 17, were based on an incident last February.

In a trembling voice, Rodgers appealed for probation, saying "If you send me to jail, my life and career will be ruined."

Rodgers said he had been told by a university official that if probation is denied, "I can't play football anymore."

The old Ryun is back -- 3:57.3!

By JOHN DIXON
Staff Writer

Welcome back, Jim Ryun.

The last time Ryun ran a mile in the Coliseum, he staggered across the finish line in 4:19.2.

SEAGULL DIES IN COLLISION WITH USSERY

Jockey Bobby Ussery and an unidentified seagull met head-on in the seventh race Friday at Hollywood Park, with the seagull suffering fatal injuries. Ussery escaped unharmed.

Ussery was aboard long-shot Sand Castle, With Sand Castle firing and dropping back, several seagulls flew up in front of the horses. The victim struck Ussery in the head and was killed by the impact with his protective helmet.

Identity of the seagull is being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Friday he staggered the field with a 34.3-second last lap and won going away 3:57.3.

His Olympic Games hopes, little better than non-existent on March 4, are as bright as the Olympic torch today.

Ryun didn't show the speed of 1967 when he knifed the world mile record to 3:51.1, but he had the mental and physical toughness to run away from Tom Von Ruden and Dave Wottle, who had been ranked as a 1-2 in the United States.

Juris Luzins led at the 440 in 59.0, with Ryun second. At the half-mile, Bob Messina was the pacesetter in 2:02, with Ryun fifth, five yards to the rear.

Ryun moved up slowly, assumed leadership at the three-quarters pole in 3:03, and the race was over.

Von Ruden tried to move at Ryun on the backstretch, but he left his kick in the barn. Wottle held his stretch drive until the last 100 yards, and that was too little, too late.

Wottle was second in 3:58.2, Bob Wheeler third in 3:59.2, Von Ruden a well-beaten seventh in 4:01.5.

"This race makes getting up in the morning a lot easier and makes calling my wife on the phone a lot easier, too," said Ryun.

"This race was satisfying for a lot of reasons. It was a very good field and a fairly good time. It was not a particularly smooth race for me, and when I took the lead and moved easily and felt real smooth, I was waiting for someone to try to pass me."

"The difference between a 3:57 and a 4:14 may be psychological."

Ryun was voted outstanding athlete of the meet.

Friday was not an outstanding night for Olympic Games gold medalists.

Randy Matson finished second in the shotput, Lee Evans second in the 440, Willie Davenport fifth in the high hurdles, Bob Beamon third in the long jump, Bob Seagren failed to clear a height in the pole vault, and Dick Fosbury was unplaced in the high jump.

The crowd of 14,375 applauded prodigiously as three 70-footers collided for the first time in the shotput.

George Woods, 6-2, 305 pounds, won with a throw of 70 1/4. Matson was second at 69-6 1/4, Al Feuerbach was third at 69-3 1/4 — his poorest finish in a year.

The 440 matched the world's top four quartermilers. All four bettered the Coliseum record of 45.3. The officials must have suffered eyestrain in determining the finish.

John Smith led Wayne Collett and Vince Matthews by one yard around the final curve, with Lee Evans launching pursuit.

Smith inched ahead, Evans had the biggest finish. Smith was in 45.0, Evans was second in the same time, Matthews was third in 45.1, Collett fourth in 45.2.

"This was the best kind of race to get ready for Munich," chuckled Smith. "Everyone here has been somewhere and beat someone. My race strategy was to get out in front by myself at 330 yards, but Lee was in great position and I can't take advantage of any man with two legs and a heart like his."

Yaz returns -- shades of '67?

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

BOSTON — He is hitting only .184. He has no home runs and a meager 5 RBI.

But he is a proud man, a man who once was the inspiration behind Boston's Impossible Dream of 1967 and he considers himself to be the potential salvation for the Red Sox in 1972.

Therefore, Carl Yastrzemski was in left field for the Sox Friday night for the first time in 30 days since he twisted his right knee sliding into home plate at Anaheim.

He says his knee is only "70 per cent" but he also says his mere presence in the lineup may alleviate some of the ills of the Red Sox.

"Why am I coming back now? Because this whole thing reminds me of 1967," Yaz said Friday before the Sox took the field and escaped with a rain-shortened 6-5, six-inning victory over the scratching, persistent Angels.

"Personally, I feel I can help guys like Reggie (Smith) and Rico (Petrolcelli)," Yaz continued. "Maybe I can take some of the pressure off them."

"But I also have to be honest with myself and the team. If I can't do it, then I'm coming out of the lineup. I don't want to hurt myself or embarrass the team. But I don't think that will happen."

It didn't happen Friday. Yastrzemski went hitless in two trips but provided a run with a sacrifice fly. He also decoyed runner Art Kusnyer on a fly ball that caromed high off the green monster in left field. Deploying himself like he was about to catch the ball, Yaz played the rebound perfectly and got a force on rookie Kusnyer at second.

The play took the Angels out of a potentially big inning. A little thing but under the circumstances that were to follow, it was especially relevant.

Apparently, Yaz did succeed in lifting the spectre of pressure from the bats of guys like Petrolcelli and Danny Carter.

didn't exactly say so, but he undoubtedly decided on the changes while viewing the first inning of Friday night's game, an inning which with a little improving could be termed as lousy.

The Dodgers' young infield no doubt was awed by the presence of the World Champion Pirates and played accordingly.

The O'Malleys blew four plays in the first inning alone, although only three errors were charged, and the Pirates augmented the Dodgers' generosity with four hits and wound up with five runs.

That was all Steve Blass needed as he pitched the Bucs to a 5-1 victory before 35,078 fans, handing Don Sutton his first loss of the year after eight consecutive wins.

Blass, who won two games last fall in the World Series, pitched a three-hitter, one of which was Frank Robinson's eighth home run of the year and 511th of his career which puts him into a 10th place tie with Mel Ott on the all-time home run list.

Robinson's homer, though, made little difference. The Dodgers had already given the game away.

Bobby Valentine, Steve Garvey and Bill Russell all contributed first-inning errors and Russell later booted another.

Thus, Aston has decided to replace Russell at shortstop with Maury Wills. He also plans to bench Willie Davis who's hitting only .249.

"Davis is in the worst slump I've ever seen him," Aston said afterward. "We all know he's not a .250 hitter. He's played every inning of every game so he's entitled to a rest."

"I'm also going to give Russell a rest. Anyway, he's got to go to military reserve duty this weekend. He'll be at the game but this might be a good time to rest him."

Russell, at one time the National League's leading hitter but now with only four hits his last 40 at bats, thinks the manager might be right.

"It might help me," the 25-year-old shortstop said, "but then again it might hurt me. I just don't know."

Despite the horrendous

Sentenced to 30 days

I'M SAFE! NO YOU'RE NOT!
Houston's Bob Watson gives out with a yell, presumably safe, while sliding past Met third baseman Jim Fregosi. Umpire John McSherry, however, didn't agree with Watson. Houston went on to defeat Mets.

first inning in which everything collapsed, the manager retained his patience and confidence in his kidie corps infield.
"The kids have been great," Aiston said.
The loss knocked the Dodgers out of first place in the National League West, a position they held nine days. It also was the seventh consecutive victory for oncrushing Pittsburgh and the Pirates' 20th win in their last 24 games as they surged to within one-half game of New York in the Eastern Division.
The evening began when Rennie Stennett hit a grounder to second baseman Valentine. He fielded the ball cleanly but slipped and then threw wild to first. One error.
Vic Davalillo followed with an infield single. Roberto Clemente then singled.

DODGER OF DAY

FRANK ROBINSON hurried for only Dodger run in 5-1 loss to Pittsburgh.
to center and that scored one run. Wilver Stargell then hit a high pop up behind third. Neither Garvey nor Russell wanted it and it fell for a "single" as Davalillo scored.
Al Oliver got a base hit and that scored Clemente, making it 3-0.
Having seen enough of this, Sutton decided to do it himself and struck out Richie Helmer.
But Manny Sanguillen grounded to Garvey who threw wild to first. Two errors.
Jack Hernandez got into it by grounding to Russell who stepped on second but threw the doubleplay ball into the dugout as two more runs scored. Three errors.
"You have to remember," commented Pittsburgh manager Bill Virdon, "that we did get some hits in there, too."

DODGER DOTE: Claude Osteen (6-3) will start tonight's game for the Dodgers, an unenviable assignment in that the Pirates have defeated 10 left-handed pitchers in their last 10 games. In those losses, Brewer has won two and saved the other three.
The Dodgers have signed three more players from the free agent draft held earlier this week. Pitcher Robert Stewart from Magnolia High in Anaheim (No. 9 selection), infielder Terry Garner, Huntington College, Indiana (No. 11), and outfielder Jerry Nolasco (No. 13).
The Dodgers are scheduled to play the Pittsburgh Pirates in Lakewood, beginning at 12 noon when LeFevre and Buckner and bullpen coach Carroll Bertinger.

San Jose Cindergals won herself an American record, 4:14.2 in the women's 1,500 meters.
Rod Milburn was the class of the 100-meter hurdles, setting a Coliseum record of 13.4 and drubbing Thomas Hill (13.5) and Europe's No. 1, Guy Brut of France (13.6).
"I feel I am in exceptional form right now," puffed Milburn. "This was the closest race I've had in a long time. I guess my streak is about 64 in a row, dating back two years. I'm not worrying about time now, just trying to keep fast and loose."
Jean-Louis Ravelomanantsoa of the Malagasy Republic also had a two-year unbeaten streak, but it was terminated Friday.
He finished third at 10.4 in the 100 meters behind Rap Robinson of Florida A&M and Roger Bambuck of France.

Other outstanding achievements were by Tim Vollmer of the Army, who set a Coliseum record of 2:06.6 in the 400-meter dash, and Curtis Beck of Santa Monica High, who won the prep mile in 4:04.2 with a last 880 in 1:59.2.

Billie Jean in Player final round

NOTTINGHAM, England — Billie Jean King of Long Beach gained the finals of the John Player round robin tennis tournament Friday, but Clark Graebner of New York City was forced to default in the middle of his match when his wife became ill.

Mrs. King defeated longtime rival Rosie Casals of San Francisco, 6-7, 6-4, 7-5, and moved into the decisive match against Evonne Goolagong of Australia.

Graebner walked off the court during a match against Jim Connors of Belleville, Ill., who led at the time, 6-3, 4-3. Graebner said nothing to the umpire or Connors as he raced off to catch a bus with his wife.

Graebner later apologized to tournament officials. Connors, meanwhile, clinched the $2,600 first prize.

Tony Davies, a spokesman for the sponsors, said all concerned fully understood the American's action.

"Mrs. Graebner has been ill and is still far from well," he said. "Perhaps unwisely she came to watch him play and Clark played the match under strain. When he saw a tournament official lead his wife out of the grounds he became distressed and could not stay on court a minute longer."

IT'S NO VICTORY DANCE

Jim Jamieson leaps in disgust after missing a long birdie putt on 9th hole of Friday's Philadelphia Classic. However, portly golfer scored hole in one on final hole for three-under par 69 and one-stroke lead after two rounds.

Jamieson's ace garners lead

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A beaming Jim Jamieson, who "couldn't believe what I saw," had a dramatic hole-in-one on his last hole Friday for a 3-under-par 69 to grab a one-stroke lead after the second round of the $150,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Jamieson came to the last hole one stroke behind early second-round leader Bob Murphy, who had finished with a 36-hole total of 137 for a seven-under par.

Jamieson used a pitching wedge on the 125-yard, par-three hole and knocked the ball onto the green about 20 feet away from the pin. The ball took one hop, spun left and plunked into the cup to give Jamieson, who had a five-under 67 Thursday, a second round total of 136.

Ironically, Mike Reaser, who had an earlier hole-in-one on the par-three 12th hole, was standing on the green of Jamieson's last hole when the portly Michigan native made the dramatic shot.

Lee Trevino, the U.S. Open champion who was one of the few big name draws in the tournament at the suburban White Marsh Valley Country Club, withdrew because of illness after finishing the second round with a two-under-par 70 for a 144.

Trevino, who will defend his Open title next week at Pebble Beach, said: "I'm going to go home and try to get well."

Trevino said that he might not go to the Open until next Wednesday, thus missing valuable practice rounds.

"I won't go until I'm well," Trevino said. "I ache all over."

Jamieson was playing steady, if unspectacular golf, prior to his exciting finish. He had a birdie on his third hole, where he knocked in a 16-footer, and picked up another stroke with a birdie on his eighth hole when he curled in an 18-footer.

He suffered a bogey on his ninth hole, when he three-putted from the fringe.

Murphy, a 1968 winner in this tournament, flew in his former college golf coach to help him with his game and finished with a three-under 69.

With the coach, Conrad

Rehling, observing Murphy from behind the ropes, the former U.S. Amateur and NCAA champion had six birdies and three bogeys but said he "actually played better than the day before," when he had a 68.

A subdued Rodriguez, who said he was concentrating more and clowning less, had five birdies and only one bogey which came when he had a bad tee shot off number seven.

The field was cut at a high figure of 149, five over par, for the remaining 36 holes and 73 players qualified.

Those failing to qualify included Bob Goalby, Phil Rodgers, Marty Furgol and George Knudson. Defending champion Tom Weiskopf just made the cut with a 149.

Blalock boycott beginning as Miller tops LPGA field

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI)

Sharon Miller fired a one-under-par 72 Friday to take a two-stroke lead over Kathy Ahern and Sayoko Yamazaki at the midway point of the $50,000 LPGA championship while the attention again shifted to embattled Jane Blalock.

Miss Miller, of Marshall, Mich., finished the second round with a total of 146 for the two days of competion, even par on the 6,130-yard course at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

Miss Blalock, the sentimental favorite from Portsmouth, N.H., slipped to a 75 for the second round and a total of 139.

She again became the center of attention among newsmen at the tournament when one report was published quoting an unnamed source as saying several women on the tour were circulating a petition to boycott LPGA events if Miss Blalock is granted a permanent injunction against the pending suspension.

The attorney for Miss Blalock said the Ladies Professional Golf Assn. recommended his client feign an injury to keep reports of her one-year suspension from reaching the press.

John Russell of New York, who represents Miss Blalock in her $5 million suit against the LPGA, told UPI that the organization suggested to his client that she avoid "bad publicity" by claiming she was off the golf tour for a year because of a back injury.

Miss Blalock at first laughed when she heard the report of the petition, then said, "No, no, I don't know anything about it. I haven't heard about any petition. That's just what I needed."

Several other women said they knew nothing of such a petition and some of them insisted such a move would be "silly."

"That's news to me," defending champion Kathy Whitworth said.

Only Russians missing Kennedy Games lures top spikers

BERKELEY, Calif. — Only the Russians are missing from the international field of athlete's entered in today's Kennedy Games.

Otherwise, the track and field meet will look a lot like last summer's U.S.-Russian-World All-Stars gathering at the same site, the University of California's Edwards Stadium.

The most notable American absentee will be world high jumper record holder Pat Matzdorf of the University of Wisconsin. He suffered a spike wound on a foot recently and is still recovering, with the U.S. Olympic Trials less than three weeks away.

There will still be 14 seven-foot high jumpers in the Kennedy Games event, including Canadian John Beer who won two weeks ago at the California Relays in Modesto and Americans Reynaldo Brown and Dick Fosbury.

Foreign athletes could win as many as 19 events in their last major U.S. meet before returning home to compete training for the Olympics.

Sprinter Jean Louis Ravellomanantsoa of Madagascar is undefeated this year and favored in the 100-yard dash. John Akili-Bua of Uganda appears to be the class of the 440-yard hurdles field. Mohinder Gill of India leads the triple jump entrants, with a world leading 55-1 1/2 mark this year.

The U.S. favorites include Rod Milburn, world record holder in the 120 high hurdles; Olympic gold medalist Lee Evans in the 440 and pole vaulter Bob Seagren.

Motor Patrol, Shua collide

Undeclared Motor Patrol will try to make it four in a row as they entertain Shua in a Harbor League American Legion game at Blair Field at 11:30 a.m. today.

In Blair Field's 2 p.m. contest, Peterson Post will host San Pedro, each with a 1-1 record.

Alamitos Bay travels to Lakewood for an 11 a.m. game while North Long Beach and the Carson Retail Clerks meet at Carson High.

There will be no games Sunday due to graduation exercises. Play will resume at Blair Field Monday evening with two games.

Napoles to defend welter title tonight

MONTERREY, Mexico — Jose Napoles makes the seventh defense of his world welterweight title tonight against Adolph Pruitt of St. Louis in a scheduled 15-round bout at Monterrey's covered bull ring where a capacity crowd of 15,000 is expected.

Napoles is recognized as champion and Pruitt the No. 1 challenger in their division by the World Boxing Council and the World Boxing Assn.

Eight inducted into cinder hall

Four men, three women and a contributor to the sport have been named to the United Savings Helms Athletic Foundation track and field hall of fame, chairman Elwood A. Teague announced Friday.

The men athletes selected were Willie Davenport, Peter McArdle, Billy Mills and Bill Toomey.

The women honored were Olga Connolly, Edith McGuire, and Willye White.

Thomas P. Rosandich, director of athletics, University of Wisconsin, Kenosha, was named for his contributions to the sport.

Washington, Baltimore not certain of team's futures

Washington D.C. apparently has gained a National Hockey League team and Baltimore has apparently lost a National Basketball Assn. team.

"It certainly doesn't look like we'll have pro basketball in Baltimore after next season," admitted Bulls publicity director Jim Henneman after the team's owner, Abe Pollin, was awarded the NHL franchise Thursday.

Riva Ridge 7-5 favorite in Belmont Stakes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Riva Ridge, the Kentucky Derby winner who lost forever his chance to become a Triple Crown winner through defeat in the Preakness, gets an opportunity to redeem himself today in the 104th running of the $155,900 Belmont Stakes.

The 3-year-olds compete in the 1½ mile classic with Riva Ridge, despite his fourth place finish in the Preakness, a 7-5 favorite to regain his position as king of his division.

"He still is king, believe me," said Lucien Laurin, the colt's trainer who finally decided at entry time Friday not to put his second stringers, Upper Case and Spanish Riddle, in the demanding race.

The horse Laurin fears most, if he fears any, is Rokeyby Stable's Key To The Mint who did not start in the Kentucky Derby even though the colt won the Derby Trial four days prior to the first of the Triple Crown classics. Key To The Mint did race in the Preakness where he finished third behind Bee Bee Bee and No Le llace.

Inglewood Handicap Favorite's role for On The Track

On The Track, enjoying a "new life" in California, goes for the richest victory of his career today at Hollywood Park when he faces nine rivals in the $80,800 Miller High Life Inglewood Handicap.

Heading the list of older horses named to oppose On The Track in the mile and one-eighth, main-track event is Canadian champion Kennedy Road, who will be making his final start if the Hollypark meeting.

On The Track, now five years old, made 45 starts in the East in his first three seasons of competition but was winless in stakes and races and earned less than $93,000. Peter Valenti, a building contractor from Villa Park, purchased him for $50,000 late last year, and the Beau Gar gelding has since won three stakes and more than $95,000 while benefiting from the training of Farrell W. Jones.

Veneke, a mare with a special fondness for Hollywood Park's main track, caused the official condition of that oval to be changed with her speedy victory in Friday's $12,000 Lawyers' Wives Purse.

Listed "good" most of the day, the track was labeled "fast" immediately after Veneke zipped six-furlongs in 1:09 2-5 to win the feature by a half-length over the fast-closing Minstrel Miss.
